

Journal of the International Phonetic Association

Published for the International Phonetic Association

Editor

Adrian P. Simpson, Friedrich-Schiller-Universität Jena, Germany

The Journal of the International Phonetic Association (JIPA) is a forum for work in the fields of phonetic theory and description. As well as including papers on laboratory phonetics/phonology and related topics, the journal encourages submissions on practical applications of phonetics to areas such as phonetics teaching and speech therapy, as well as the analysis of speech phenomena in relation to computer speech processing. It is especially concerned with the theory behind the International Phonetic Alphabet and discussions of the use of symbols for illustrating the phonetic structures of a wide variety of languages. JIPA now publishes online audio files to supplement written articles.

Journal of French Language Studies

Co-ordinating Editor

Julia Herschensohn, University of Washington, USA

Journal of French Language Studies, sponsored by the Association for French Language Studies, encourages and promotes theoretical, descriptive and applied studies of all aspects of the French language. The journal brings together research from the English - and French - speaking traditions, publishing significant work on French phonology, morphology, syntax, lexis and semantics, discourse-pragmatics, sociolinguistics and variation studies. Most work is synchronic in orientation, but historical and comparative items are also included. Studies of the acquisition of the French language, where these take due account of current theory in linguistics and applied linguistics, are also published.

Journal of Germanic Linguistics

Published for the Society for Germanic Linguistics (SGL) and the Forum for Germanic Language Studies (FGLS)

Editorial Committee Chair

Robert W. Murray, University of Calgary, Canada

The Journal of Germanic Linguistics (JGL) carries original articles, reviews, and notes on synchronic and diachronic issues pertaining to Germanic languages and dialects from the earliest phases to the present, including English (to 1500) and the extraterritorial varieties. Contributions are invited on the phonological, morphological, syntactic, and semantic analysis of these languages and dialects, as well as their historical development, both linguistic and textual. Especially welcome are contributions that address questions of interest to a broad range of scholars concerned with general issues in formal theory, sociolinguistics, and psycholinguistics.

Journal of Linguistics

The Journal of the Linguistics Association of Great Britain

Editors

Nigel Fabb, University of Strathclyde, UK
 Caroline Heycock, University of Edinburgh, UK
 Robert D. Borsley, University of Essex, UK

Journal of Linguistics has as its goal to publish articles that make a clear contribution to current debate in all branches of theoretical linguistics. The journal also provides an excellent survey of recent linguistics publications, with around thirty book reviews in each volume and regular review articles on major works marking important theoretical advances.

'The Journal of Linguistics is one of the top journals for theoretical linguistics. It's chock full of new ideas and wonderfully free of theoretical orthodoxy.' Ivan Sag, Stanford University.

Phonology

Editors

Colin J. Ewen, University of Leiden

Ellen M. Kaisse, University of Washington

Phonology, published three times a year, is the only journal devoted exclusively to the discipline, and provides a unique forum for the productive interchange of ideas among phonologists and those working in related disciplines.

Preference is given to papers which make a substantial theoretical contribution, irrespective of the particular theoretical framework employed, but the submission of papers presenting new empirical data of general theoretical interest is also encouraged.

The journal carries research articles, as well as book reviews and shorter pieces on topics of current controversy within phonology.

Notes for Contributors

PREPARATION OF MANUSCRIPTS

There are three ways to contribute to NJL: (longer) articles, short communications and book reviews. Short communications are like articles in that they are peer-reviewed, but they are different from articles in that they make it possible to state or illustrate an empirical point without necessarily giving a full-fledged and theoretically integrated analysis. Short communications are also appropriate for comments on articles published earlier in NJL. Manuscripts of articles and short communications will normally be read by three referees.

Contributors should initially submit their manuscripts in fully anonymized double-spaced PDF files attached to an e-mail message. The main body of the e-mail message should include (i) the name and full contact details of the author(s), (ii) the title and the category of the paper, (iii) an abstract of 100–150 words summarizing the content, and (iv) 5–10 key words or short phrases in alphabetical order. The name(s) of the author(s) must not be included in the file prior to refereeing.

Papers accepted for publication should also be submitted electronically, in a Word file and an identical PDF file, with any tables, figures and figure captions in separate DOC and PDF files. The text should be typed in 12 pt Times font throughout, double-spaced, with standard margins on all four sides of each page, page numbers at top right, and the right margin non-justified. The paper's title, the name(s) of the author(s), an abstract, key words/phrases and the full postal and e-mail addresses of the author(s) should be presented at the start of the paper, in the order just listed. There should be no automatic section, example, table and figure numbering and cross-referencing in the file; only automatic endnote-numbering is permitted. PC-readable Word and OpenDocument files are preferred. If you have to use some other format, including LaTeX, please consult the editors prior to submission.

In order to increase the efficiency of the process of manuscript preparation in line with the notes below, authors are advised to look up the relevant features of articles or book reviews in a recent issue of the Journal (either paper copy or the online version). While the manuscript format and the printed format differ in some respects (most obviously in font size and details of page layout), printed material will provide useful hints for the interpretation of these notes.

Forms of the language(s) under discussion cited in the running text should be in italics; phonetic representation should be included in square brackets [...], phonemic representation between slant lines /.../, English glosses should be added directly after a cited non-English form between single quotes, and reconstructed and non-occurring (ungrammatical) forms should be preceded by an asterisk *.

Each example sentence in a language other than English must be translated into English. A word-for-word gloss is obligatory, whereas an idiomatic translation may be omitted when the meaning is clear from the word-for-word gloss. The word-for-word glosses should be in italics and aligned under the original forms, and the idiomatic translation should follow on a separate line below, enclosed in single quotes.

Please refer to full version of Instructions for Contributors available from NJL's website, journals.cambridge.org/NJL, or from the editors.

PROOFS

First proofs of articles, short communications and book reviews will be sent electronically, as PDF files, to the (first-named) author, who will be expected to correct them and send proof corrections electronically within three days of receipt.

The Nordic Association of Linguists

The Nordic Association of Linguists (NAL) is an organisation whose aim is to promote the interests of linguists, especially those working in the Nordic countries, and of linguists working specifically with the languages of the Nordic countries.

The activities of the Nordic Association of Linguists include:

- the Nordic Journal of Linguistics, published for the Association by Cambridge University Press;
- two conference series, the Scandinavian Conference of Linguistics and the International Conference on Nordic and General Linguistics, organised under the auspices of the Association (proceedings are published for both series);
- some financial support to graduate students in Nordic languages or linguistics.

Membership of the Nordic Association of Linguists includes a subscription to the Nordic Journal of Linguistics; the rate for full members is £30 (US$48) and student members £16 (US$25). For membership enquiries, please consult the NAL web site, www.uef.fi/nal or contact NAL at nal@uef.fi.
