

NOTES AND COMMENTS

CORRESPONDENCE

The American Journal of International Law welcomes short communications from its readers. It reserves the right to determine which letters to publish and to edit any letters printed. Letters should conform to the same format requirements as other manuscripts.

TO THE EDITORS IN CHIEF:

In my review of the Encyclopedia of Human Rights, edited by David P. Forsythe (104 AJIL 150 (2010)), I inadvertently stated on page 153 that all of the co-editors with Professor Forsythe were “from either the United States or Western Europe.” However, one of the editors, Rhoda Howard-Hassmann, is a citizen of Canada. I very much regret this error.

THE FRANCIS DEÁK PRIZE

The Board of Editors is pleased to announce that the Francis Deák Prize for 2010 was awarded to both Jacob Katz Cogan for his article entitled Representation and Power in International Organization: The Operational Constitution and Its Critics, which appeared in the April 2009 issue, and Galit A. Sarfaty for her article entitled Why Culture Matters in International Institutions: The Marginality of Human Rights at the World Bank, which appeared in the October 2009 issue.

The prize was established by Philip Cohen in memory of Dr. Francis Deák, an international legal scholar and lifelong member of the American Society of International Law, to honor a younger author who has published a meritorious contribution to international legal scholarship in the American Journal of International Law.
