
CONTRIBUTORS

Angner Erik is a graduate student in the Department of History and Philosophy of Science and the Department of Economics at the University of Pittsburgh. He is co-author (with George Loewenstein) of "Predicting and indulging changing preferences", to appear in Loewenstein, Read and Baumeister (eds.). Time and Decision. The Economics and Psychology of Intertemporal Choice (Russell Sage), and author of "The history of Hayek's theory of cultural evolution", forthcoming in Studies in History and Philosophy of Science.

Carruthers Peter is Professor of Philosophy and Chair of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Maryland. He is the author of eight books and numerous articles. His primary research interests for most of the last decade have been in the philosophy of psychology.

Cowen Tyler has published on monetary economics, welfare economics, rational choice ethics, and the economics of culture. His books include In Praise of Commercial Culture (Harvard University Press, 1998), What Price Fame? (Harvard University Press, 2000), and Creative Destruction: How Globalization is Changing the World's Cultures (Princeton University Press, 2002). He is currently Holbert C. Harris Professor of Economics at George Mason University, and Director of the Mercatus Center and the James M. Buchanan Center for Political Economy.

Douven Igor teaches philosophy of science and epistemology in the Department of Philosophy, Erasmus University Rotterdam and is a member of the Erasmus Institute of Philosophy and Economics. His main research interests are the realism debate in the philosophy of science, theories of reference, and the nature of rationality. He has published papers on these and other topics in Dutch and international journals.

Ferejohn John is Carolyn S. G. Munro Professor of Political Science and Senior Fellow of the Hoover Institution, Stanford University. He is also Visiting Professor of Law and Politics at New York University.

Macleod Colin M. is associate professor of philosophy at the University of Victoria, Victoria B.C. He is the author of Liberalism, Justice, and Markets: A Critique of Liberal Equality (Oxford University Press, 1998) and the co-editor, with David Archard, of The Moral and Political Status of Children (Oxford University Press, 2002).

Mäki Uskali is a professor at the Erasmus Institute for Philosophy and Economics. He is co-editor of the Journal of Economic Methodology; editor of The Economic World View: Studies in the Ontology of Economics (2001) and Fact and Fiction in Economics: Models, Realism and Social Construction (2002); and co-editor of The Handbook of Economic Methodology (1998), Economics and Methodology. Crossing Boundaries (1998), and Rationality, Institutions and Economic Methodology (1993).

Notturmo Mark received his Ph.D. in Philosophy from Columbia University in 1982. He is the author of On Popper, Science and the Open Society; and Objectivity, Rationality and the Third Realm – and the editor of Karl Popper's The Myth of the Framework and Knowledge and the Body-Mind Problem. From 1994 through 1999 he lived in Budapest and Vienna where, as well as being director of the Soros and Ianus Foundations' "Popper Project", he also lectured on Popper's philosophy in Europe, Asia, and America. He currently lives in Washington DC, where, as a fellow at the Interactivity Foundation, he is directing a public policy governance project on privacy and privacy rights.

Robins Michael is Professor of Philosophy at Bowling Green State University. His major publications include: Promising, Intending, and Moral Autonomy. Cambridge University Press, 1984; and recently, several articles mostly on practical rationality, one on collective intention, and one on game theory.

Subramanian S. is a professor at the Madras Institute of Development Studies. He has research interests in collective choice theory, aspects of social and economic measurement, and development economics. His articles have appeared in such journals as Social Choice and Welfare, Theory and Decision, and Journal of Development Economics. He is also the editor or co-editor of four books.

Van Bouwel Jeroen is research assistant of the Fund for Scientific Research of Flanders (Belgium). He is working at the Centre for Logic and Philosophy of Science at Ghent University, where he is completing a Ph.D. thesis on the philosophical foundations of historiography and other social sciences.

Weber Erik is Professor of the Philosophy of Science at Ghent University (Belgium). His research interests include explanation and causation in the natural and social sciences, pragmatism and economic methodology.

Yuengert Andrew is the John and Francis Duggan Professor of Economics at Pepperdine University.