

inquiry, we believe that reasons will emerge which will commend this classification to the reader's acceptance more effectually, than anything which we have been able to advance in its favour in the section which is here brought to a close.

(To be Continued.)

---

BOOK NOTICE. Histoire Littéraire des Fens, par OCTAVE DELPEIERRE, fcp. 8vo., pp. 184, London, TRÜBNER and Co. A delightful little work on a most interesting subject. The author displays, for a Frenchman, a remarkable knowledge of English literature. His bibliographical lore is wide and curious, and although he treats his subject almost exclusively as one of literary research, he affords abundant and rich material for the reflections of a psychologist. Want of space prevents us at the present time from giving more than the briefest notice of this work, but we hope on a future opportunity to give it the consideration it deserves.

---

APPOINTMENT. DR. EDWIN WING, M.D., LOND., to be Medical Superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane at Northampton.