

WERNER BLUMENBERG †

On October 1 Werner Blumenberg, Head of the German Department of the Internationaal Instituut voor Sociale Geschiedenis, died after a long period of illness.

His work as a member of the staff of the Institute and his publications, some of which appeared under its auspices, established his reputation as a social historian.

The readers of this periodical will remember Mr. Blumenberg's scholarly contributions. In one of the forthcoming issues we shall give a more detailed account of his life and work.
