International Theory

A Journal of International Politics, Law and Philosophy

journals.cambridge.org/int

Editors

Duncan Snidal, University of Chicago
Alexander Wendt, The Ohio State University

Launching in 2009, International Theory invites papers on theory of all varieties and from all disciplines, provided it addresses problems of politics, broadly defined and relates to the international.

International Theory welcomes scholarship that uses evidence from the real world to advance theoretical arguments. However, it is intended as a forum where scholars can develop theoretical arguments in depth without an expectation of extensive empirical analysis.

Full instructions for contributors can be found here: journals.cambridge.org/int/ifc

The Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies at Yale

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS • AFRICAN STUDIES • EAST ASIAN STUDIES • EUROPEAN AND RUSSIAN STUDIES

For decades, Yale University has been at the cutting edge of international and area studies research and education, preparing future leaders to help shape and define a changing world.

Master of Arts Degree Programs ■■■■■■■■■■

The MacMillan Center's graduate programs in International Relations, African Studies, East Asian Studies, and European and Russian Studies seek highly qualified students who want to pursue the challenges of a career in international affairs in academic and educational sites, multilateral and national governments, business and non-profit organizations around the world. These flexible master's programs enable students to pursue highly individualized, yet guided, courses of study drawing on the wealth of international resources at Yale University.

Joint Degrees with the Professional Schools ■■■

The MacMillan Center collaborates with four of Yale's professional schools – the Law School, the School of Management, the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies, and the School of Public Health. Our joint degree programs enable students to connect two demanding courses of study while also fulfilling their separate requirements. Whether training to manage health programs in Africa or to pursue business opportunities in China, the joint programs are ideal for students seeking greater expertise in an additional professional field beyond international affairs.

Specialization through Graduate Certificates ■■■

Any doctoral, master's or graduate professional student at Yale can develop targeted expertise through one of the MacMillan Center's six graduate certificates of concentration – International Development Studies and International Security Studies as well as four regionally focused certificates in African Studies, European Studies, Latin American and Iberian Studies, and Modern Middle East Studies.

Exceptional Resources and Facilities ■■■■■■■■■■

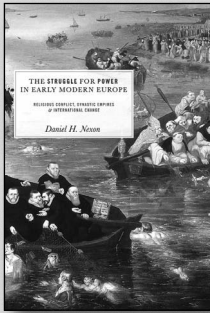

When you join any of the Master's program of the MacMillan Center, the whole of Yale University is available to you. Yale's history and rich traditions complement a tremendous wealth of resources accessible to all students within the MacMillan Center community. Students are given many opportunities to take advantage of the vibrant and diverse intellectual, social, and cultural life integral to the Yale experience. The MacMillan Center offers a range of fellowships and, with five federally funded National Resource Centers, also supports U.S. citizens enrolled in graduate degree programs with intensive language study.

The Struggle for Power in Early Modern Europe

Religious Conflict, Dynastic Empires, and International Change

Daniel H. Nexon

“This is an extremely impressive book. Nexon not only illuminates a crucial and controversial moment in the history of international relations, but he does so in the context of making a vital theoretical and methodological contribution to the field. This is a very important study, and a superb piece of work.”

Power, Interdependence, and Nonstate Actors in World Politics

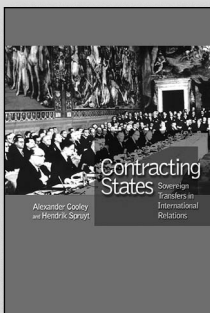

Edited by Helen V. Milner & Andrew Moravcsik

“This important and timely book pushes the theoretical envelop of neoliberal institutionalism and represents an important step forward in international relations theory. The scholarship is sound, well-documented, and effectively presented, and the ideas are framed and explored in ways that will give them lasting value.”

—Giulio Gallarotti, Wesleyan University

Contracting States

Sovereign Transfers in International Relations

Alexander Cooley & Hendrik Spruyt

“Contracting States is an extraordinary undertaking that challenges us to see the foundations of successful international cooperation in a new light. This is likely to be a seminal work that defines the terms of the debate about sovereignty and governance for years to come.”
