The prime objective of the Journal is to promote the rule of law in humanitarian emergency situations and, in particular, the protection and assistance afforded to persons in the event of armed conflicts and natural disasters in all phases and facets under international law. Additionally, it aims to further the understanding of the relevant legal areas in their own right as well as in their interplay. Moreover, the Journal encourages writing beyond the theoretical level taking into account the practical implications from the perspective of those who are or may be affected by humanitarian emergency situations. The Journal seeks the perspective of academics, government and organisation officials, military lawyers, practitioners working in the humanitarian (legal) field, as well as students and other individuals interested therein.

Hugo Grotius Mare Liberum 1609-2009

Original Latin Text and English Translation

Robert Feenstra

- December 2009
- ISBN 978 90 04 17701 7
- Cloth with dustjacket (LXV, 178 pp.
Facsimile edition, richly illustrated)
- List price EUR 46.- / US$ 66.-

The quadricentenary of Hugo Grotius' Mare liberum (1609-2009) offered the opportunity to publish a reliable critical edition – combined with a revised English translation – of Grotius' first publication in the field of international law. Starting from a comparison with the autographic manuscript, Robert Feenstra undertook a verification of the text of the first and only authorised edition – in particular of the numerous marginal references – resulting in many corrections and further annotations. In his 'Editor's Introduction', he explains the history of the later editions of the Latin text and the translations of Mare liberum. Jeroen Vervliet's 'General Introduction' aims at providing a better understanding of the circumstances in which Hugo Grotius wrote this work; it elucidates the legal argument used by Grotius, and the reaction of his contemporary opponents.

New Series: Nijhoff International Trade Law Series

General Editor: Mads Andenas, Professor, University of Oslo

brill.nl/nint

ISSN: 1877-7392

The Nijhoff International Trade Law Series is a forum for important and original research. It covers international trade law in its widest sense, including International Economic Law and International Financial Law. The series moves across the boundaries that divide the law. The series includes studies of trade law subjects that would fall within the disciplines and sub-disciplines of public and private international and comparative law. National implementation and other aspects of the interaction between national and international law is a growing field of scholarship, and national constitutional arrangements relating to 'foreign affairs', and to the implementation of international norms, are a focus of attention. The relationship between different treaty regimes and the emergence of international rule of law concepts are also subjected to more rigorous analysis. Comparative law is increasingly used as a tool in the making of law at national, regional and international levels. Different international and national systems interact in ever more complicated ways. Private international law is often affected by international conventions, and the issues faced by classical conflict rules are dealt with by substantive harmonization of law. International arbitrations involve public and private international law, and investment protection and human rights and democratic standards.

Since the early 1990s, cross-border police and judicial cooperation has become a very important domain of the European Union. The Lisbon Treaty – if accepted by all the Member States – will certainly be a major stimulus to its further development in the field of internal security as well as in the field of external policy. In any event, the recent proposal for a new third comprehensive policy programme with regard to the Area of Freedom, Security and Justice – the so-called Stockholm Programme – foreshadows some of the changes the Brussels institutions and the Member States would like to embrace in the coming years. This book contains the contributions of scholars and practitioners to a conference on the future of police and judicial cooperation in the European Union that took place in November 2008 at Tilburg University. Referring to what has been achieved in this domain since the Treaty of Maastricht, these papers not only assess the proposals that have been put forward in successive policy documents relating to the Stockholm Programme, but they also pinpoint to the ongoing problems in the theory and practice of police and judicial cooperation within the European Union and to the ways in which these questions could best be solved.

Domestic Violence and International Law

Bonita Meyersfeld

Foreword by Harold Koh, The Legal Adviser, United States Department of State (2009-)

'...an original, provocative, and much needed legal framework for the coherent development of a norm against domestic violence in international human rights law... [This book] breaks new ground and will surely provide a valuable resource for lawyers, judges and policymakers for many years to come.'

This book provides a comprehensive legal analysis for why a state should be accountable in international law for allowing women to suffer extreme forms of domestic violence and how this can help individual victims.

Bonita Meyersfeld is an international human rights lawyer, specialising in violence, gender and development and is currently working as a parliamentary legal adviser in the House of Lords.

The Iran Nuclear Issue

Yael Ronen

Controversy over the Iranian nuclear policy has been mounting in both legal and political circles since the early 2000s. This volume documents the Iranian nuclear issue, tracing the evolution of international interest and concern with Iran's nuclear policy since the 1970s, when Iran began earnest efforts to acquire nuclear capabilities. Emphasis is nonetheless placed on events since 2002-2003, when it was established that Iran had concealed certain aspects of its nuclear activities from the IAEA. Alongside reports of the IAEA and Security Council documents, the volume covers diverse sources rather than relying solely on UN organs and agencies, international organisations or dedicated ad hoc bodies.

Yael Ronen is a Lecturer in the Faculty of Law at Ono Academic College, Jerusalem.

An Introduction to the Law of the United Nations

Robert Kolb

This work aims to fill a gap in the existing legal literature by presenting a compact, concise but nevertheless panoramic view of the law of the United Nations. In spite of its importance, this pre-eminent world political organisation is poorly understood by the general public, and the extent and variety of its activities is not widely appreciated. Assessments of the organisation and judgements about its achievements are consequently frequently distorted. This work is aimed especially at remedying these deficiencies in public and legal understanding, but also at presenting the organisation as a coherent system of values and integrated action.

Robert Kolb is Professor of Public International Law at the University of Geneva.

The Legal Foundations of INTERPOL

Rutsel Silvestre J Martha

The present work is a study of the legal aspects of the birth and development of an international organization, using the example of INTERPOL as a detailed case study. It is not a constitutional manual for INTERPOL, but an organisational study, and does not seek to be exhaustive in terms of its description of INTERPOL's operations. Its main focus is the examination of the question whether an international organisation, in this case INTERPOL, can be created without a solemn and formally celebrated treaty.

Rutsel Martha is the General Counsel and Director of Legal Affairs of the International Fund for Agricultural Development.

GEORGETOWN LAW

Georgetown Law offers one of the largest transnational legal education programs in the world. With an ideal location and a campus of major new buildings that include an international and comparative law library, Georgetown Law is one of the leading global law schools.

The array of courses dealing with transnational, international, and comparative law is extraordinarily comprehensive, numbering over 150. This curriculum is generated and sustained by over 110 full-time faculty members, more than 30 of whom are currently focused on transnational and international curriculum subjects. These full-time faculty members are joined by over 90 distinguished Washington, D.C. practitioners from inside and outside the government. In addition, faculty exchanges bring several foreign law professors to visit each year.

Additional Transnational Initiatives:

Center for Transnational Legal Studies: In Fall 2008, Georgetown inaugurated the new London-based Center for Transnational Legal Studies (CTLIS). Georgetown students study alongside classmates drawn from over a dozen select partner schools, located in almost as many countries around the globe. A truly transnational faculty, drawn from many of the same schools, offers a curriculum specifically designed for those students intent on transnational careers. With this diversity of perspectives, and no "host" school or jurisdiction, students have a unique, semester-long opportunity to study transnational legal topics in a truly transnational setting.

Semester Study Abroad: As an alternative to the Center for Transnational Legal Studies, J.D. students at Georgetown may choose to study abroad for a semester at one of a number of outstanding foreign law schools including: Universidad Torcuato di Tella in Buenos Aires, Argentina; Tsinghua University Law School in Beijing, China; Bucerius Law School in Hamburg, Germany; Hebrew University of Jerusalem in Israel; National Law School in Bangalore, India; the University of Leiden in The Netherlands; National University of Singapore Law School; and ESADE Law School in Barcelona, Spain.

Global Law Scholars: Georgetown created the Global Law Scholars Program in response to the changing nature of legal practice and in recognition of the Law Center's prominent positioning—both academic and geographic—with regard to many of the most important cross-border legal institutions. The program offers access to a special curriculum as well as invited speakers and networking opportunities. Participation is limited to a select group of students who have a demonstrated commitment to the international sphere and who are interested in a particularly intensive preparation for the increasingly global nature of law practice, in the United States and abroad.

For more information on Georgetown's vast array of International and Transnational programs, please see visit the Office of Transnational Programs website at www.law.georgetown.edu/otp.

The Pursuit of International Criminal Justice: A World Study on Conflicts, Victimization, and Post-Conflict Justice

M. Cherif Bassiouni (ed.)

This publication includes a survey of world conflicts that occurred between 1945 and 2008, the level of victimization they produced, and the subsequent post-conflict justice (PCJ) mechanisms which were applied. It is intended to show the scope of the problem faced by international criminal justice (ICJ), and how the International Criminal Court (ICC) needs to shape its mission and approach to address ICJ needs and expectations.

ICJ is no longer the utopian topic of only forty years ago. After WWII, the Nuremberg and Tokyo trials were aimed at major offenders in leadership positions. Their prosecution and punishment, it was assumed, would have far-reaching, deterring, and educational effects. Since 1948, however, some 310 conflicts have taken place resulting in an estimated 92 to 101 million people killed; in addition an inestimable number of persons have been injured or have suffered psychological and material harm. Yet, for the most part, perpetrators have benefited from impunity and escaped accountability.

How can contemporary ICJ address such a volume of core international crimes which have generated so much victimization and material harm? Are the post-WWII assumptions still valid? Can national justice systems assume the primary task of prosecutions? What will the mission of the ICC become, and how will it acquit itself of it? These are issues which are identified within the International Guidelines on Post-Conflict Justice prepared during this project (herein referred to as the Chicago Principles). They are a set of comprehensive guidelines describing how governments, international institutions, and others should respond to serious violations of human rights, as well as how to promote peace and reconciliation in the aftermath of conflict. They are also an indispensable strategy within which the ICC can best function. Can it then be assumed that the ICC is likely to achieve its mission in the years to come?

What follows in this book, which contains the proceedings of five regional conferences in Asia, Africa, the Arab World, Europe, and Central and South America, as well as a number of thematic studies dealing with post-conflict justice, should be most instructive to the ICC. These studies also assess various PCJ experiences as a means of determining the most appropriate policy responses in the context of a comprehensive strategy.

New From
Edward Elgar
Publishing

Journal of Human Rights and the Environment

Co-Editors in Chief:

Anna Grear, University of the West of England
and Karen Morrow, University of Swansea, UK

'I do not know of any journal in existence that fuses these issues. . . Literature on this issue is growing by the day and scholars frequently have to revert to less issue-specific journals to publish these findings. The journal. . . will provide an ideal opportunity to disseminate research findings.'

– Louis Kotze, North West University, South Africa

'Environmental and human rights issues are two of the most pressing concerns of the 21st century, and so, therefore, is the way in which these issues interact. This journal will be a timely and vital addition to the international legal literature.'

– Sarah Joseph, Castan Centre for Human Rights Law, Monash University, Australia

'We have waited a long time for a journal like this. These two essential areas of concern, human rights and the environment, urgently need bringing together in this way. Only when the interface between them is fully acknowledged and clarified can we address the grave issues currently facing the world – from climate change to the impacts of globalisation.'

– Laura Westra, University of Windsor, Canada

The relationship between human rights and the environment is a fascinating, uneasy, and increasingly urgent one. This new international journal provides a strategic academic forum in which an extended interdisciplinary and multilayered conversation can take place concerning the challenges located at the interface of these two centrally important fields. The quality of the editorial board, which is made up of leading scholars with outstanding international reputations, ensures that this journal will make a unique contribution to an informed understanding of the relationship between human rights and the environment.

OXFORD REPORTS ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

Oxford Reports on International Law (ORIL) brings together important decisions on public international law from international courts and tribunals, domestic courts and ad hoc tribunals. For the first time, the full scope of international case law is available in one place, accompanied by expert analysis and powerful navigation. New cases are added every two weeks, making this service the first stop for up-to-date information on international case law. In addition to offering extensive coverage and frequent updates, ORIL provides users with case reports featuring high-quality commentary and analysis collated and edited by a team of distinguished experts.

This service consists of five content modules defined by subject focus, available as standalone or multi-module subscriptions:

Oxford Reports on International Law in Domestic Courts
Oxford Reports on International Criminal Law
Oxford Reports on International Human Rights Law
Oxford Reports on International Investment Claims
Oxford Reports on International Courts of General Jurisdiction
(FREE access is included with a subscription to any Oxford Reports on International Law service)

INVESTMENT CLAIMS

Winner of the OGEMID IDR-Related Project of the Year 2009

Investment Claims brings together primary materials and high-quality commentary and analysis focusing on international investment arbitration. For the first time, practitioners and scholars can access a suite of investment arbitration materials, featuring full-text investment awards with official documents and authoritative commentary, as well as a whole host of key instruments and tools for the study of international investment disputes. Users can also access bilateral investment treaties and a directory of arbitrators and legal counsel.

INTERNATIONAL LAW: 100 WAYS IT SHAPES OUR LIVES

Many find international law abstract and static. Topics such as war and peace or relationships between countries are considered by some to be not so much questions of law, but of power and influence. Others question the existence of international law.

International Law: 100 Ways It Shapes Our Lives was conceived from the proposition that international law not only exists, but also penetrates more deeply and broadly into everyday life than is generally recognized. Some ways are of relatively recent vintage, while others are long-standing. 100 examples were identified by ASIL members, vetted by a smaller group of experts, and organized into seven chapters: 1) daily life; 2) leisure; 3) travel; 4) commerce 5) health and the environment; 6) personal liberty; 7) public safety and global security.

Join us in demonstrating how international law shapes our lives by

- Visiting 100 Ways at <http://www.asil100.org/ways.html>;
- Using it in teaching and general civic education programs;
- Adding ways to the list; and
- Sharing your experiences using International Law: 100 Ways It Shapes Our Lives.

We hope that this creative and interactive project will help demonstrate the diversity and the centrality of international law to our lives today.
