

CONTRIBUTORS

---

N. Emrah Aydinonat is an Assistant Professor of Economics at Ankara University (Ankara, Turkey) and part-time faculty at Bogazici University & Galatasaray University (Istanbul, Turkey). His research focuses on the history and philosophy of economics, in particular models and explanation in economics. He is the author of The Invisible Hand in Economics: How Economists Explain Unintended Social Consequences (Routledge, 2008).

Luigino Bruni is Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Milano-Bicocca. He works on the history of economic thought, economics and philosophy, ethics and cultural evolution. His books include Reciprocity, Altruism and Civil Society (Routledge, 2008), and Capability and Happiness (editor, with F. Comim and M. Pugno, Oxford University Press, 2008).

John Davis is Professor of History and Philosophy of Economics at the University of Amsterdam and Professor of Economics at Marquette University. He is the author of Keynes's Philosophical Development (1994), The Theory of the Individual in Economics (2003), and Individuals and Identity in Economics (2011). He is co-editor (with D. Wade Hands) of the Journal of Economic Methodology.

Robin Harding is a Ph.D. Candidate in the Wilf Family Department of Politics at New York University. His main research interest is the political economy of development, with a particular focus on how democracy affects the provision of public goods in sub-Saharan Africa.

Frank Hindriks is Assistant Professor at the Department of Ethics of the University of Groningen. His areas of expertise are philosophy of the social sciences, social ontology, political philosophy and moral psychology. He has published in journals such as Economics and Philosophy, Erkenntnis, Journal of Economic Methodology, Philosophy of the Social Sciences, Philosophical Quarterly and Philosophical Studies.

Bruna Ingraio, Professor of Economics at the University of Rome 'La Sapienza', works primarily on the history of economic ideas and on development economics. She has co-authored with Giorgio Israel The Invisible Hand: Economic Equilibrium in the History of Science, and (with Fabio Ranchetti) Il mercato nel pensiero economico, a history of economics focusing on leading European economists.

Martin Jones is Lecturer in Economic Studies in the Economic Studies Division at the University of Dundee. He has a general research interest in experimental economics, specializing in game theory and decision theory. Recently he has become more interested in the methodological questions raised by experimental economics and has published papers in the area.

Mark Peacock is Associate Professor at the Department of Social Science, York University, Toronto. His research interests include many aspects of economic philosophy and the history and origins of money.

Mauro Rossi is an Assistant Professor at the Université du Québec à Montréal. His current research interests are in value theory and the philosophy of economics.

Laura Valentini is Junior Research Fellow in Politics at The Queen's College, Oxford. Her research focuses on methodology in political philosophy, international ethics and democratic theory. Her recent publications include: Coercion and (Global) Justice, American Political Science Review and Justice in a Globalized World: A Normative Framework (Oxford University Press, forthcoming, 2011). From September until December 2011, she will be a Fellow at the Swedish Collegium for Advanced Study (Uppsala, Sweden). In January 2012 she will take up a lectureship at University College London, Department of Political Science.