Genius of Shakespeare Tenth Anniversary Edition JONATHAN BATE

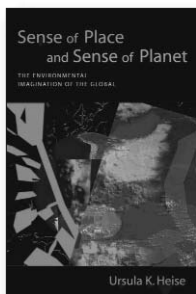

"Jonathan Bate, the sanest, shrewdest scholar of Shakespeare at present, has written the just, liberal, unhostaged book that one has been waiting for."

—James Wood, Guardian

"A shrewd, nimbly written book, one of the few on its subject that will be read and enjoyed off-campus."—Terry Eagleton, Independent

2008 408 pp.; 20 halftones paper $24.95

Sense of Place and Sense of Planet

The Environmental Imagination of the Global

URSULA K. HEISE

"At the leading edge of a rapidly evolving environmental discourse, Heise announces the moment of a new eco-cosmopolitanism. Her visionary manifesto the book is nothing less-gathers the most politically serious and aesthetically challenging of contemporary writers in order to take us beyond the reassurance of a return to Mother Nature, beyond an ethics or an aesthetics of proximity, and to make real the possibilities of an environmentalism without borders."—Bruce Robbins, Columbia University

2008 264 pp. paper $24.95 cloth $99.00

Millennial Literatures of the Americas, 1492-2002

THOMAS O. BEEBEE

In this sweeping study, Thomas O. Beebee explores literary treatments of the end of the world in a wide array of English, French, and Spanish works that appeared over the course of a five-hundred year span throughout the Americas.

(Imagining the Americas)

2008 288 pp. $65.00

Bad Form

Social Mistakes and the Nineteenth-Century Novel

KENT PUCKETT

Bad Form argues that the social mistake—the blunder, the gaffe, the faux pas—is crucial to the structure of the nineteenth-century novel, into twentieth-century film.

2008 208 pp. $45.00

A Mind Apart

Poems of Melancholy, Madness, and Addiction

MARK S. BAUER

This anthology offers comfort for those who suffer from mental illness and those who struggle to understand it. Gathering more than 200 poems from across six centuries, it presents a remarkably wide-ranging selection of poetry, thoughtfully framed, while also providing a critical-clinical introduction that asks what we mean by "madness" and "mental illness."

2008 304 pp. cloth $99.00 paper $24.95

French Tales

HELEN CONSTANTINE

Evocative stories from the twenty-two regions of France, perfect for fiction lovers, the armchair traveler, and anyone enchanted by French life and culture.

2008 368 pp.; b/w photographs paper $17.95

Jewish Music and Modernity

PHILIP BOHLMAN

Jewish Music and Modernity demonstrates how borders between repertoires are crossed and the sound of modernity is enriched by the movement of music and musicians from the peripheries to the center of modern culture. Bohlman ultimately challenges readers to experience the modern confrontation of self and other anew.

(AMS Studies in Music)

2008 368 pp.; 35 halftones, 5 music examples $45.00

African Culture and Melville's Art

The Creative Process in Benito Cereno and Moby-Dick

STERLING STUCKEY

Sterling Stuckey illuminates the process by which Melville's Benito Cereno was created and uncovers a major link between the great novella and Melville's most ambitious and powerful work, Moby-Dick, all in the context of Africa.

Counterfeit Capital Poetic Labor and Revolutionary Irony

JENNIFER BAJOREK

“Written in clear and elegant language, admirably interpreting texts, Jennifer Bajorek’s book invents a convincing parallel between Marx and Baudelaire as critics and poets of the antinomies of exchange, technology and life. Her debt to Benjamin and Derrida is avowed, but the work proves absolutely original. It opens a new chapter in the debates on dissemination, irony and ambivalence as intrinsic tropes of modernity. I cannot but follow her enthusiastically.”

—Etienne Balibar,

University of Paris X, Nanterre and University of California, Irvine

Golden Legends Images of Abyssinia, Samuel Johnson to Bob Marley

W. B. CARNOCHAN

Through a discussion of a variety of literary texts, journalistic writings, and memoirs, beginning with Samuel Johnson’s novel The History of Rasselas and running up through the funeral of the celebrated reggae musician and Rastafarian Bob Marley, this book explores the unexpected hold that Abyssinia has had on the British literary imagination from the eighteenth century to the present.

$29.95 cloth

Translation, Subjectivity, and Culture in France and England, 1600-1800

JULIE CANDLER HAYES

“Translation, Subjectivity, and Culture offers a new and exhaustive approach to the theoretical models that have shaped our understanding of translation and literature. The book is a remarkable achievement that will become an important reference for the study of seven-teenth- and eighteenth-century translation theory.”

—Marie-Hélène Huet,
Princeton University

$60.00 cloth

Anonymous Life Romanticism and Dispossession

JACQUES KHALIP

“Jacques Khalip is quite brilliant in the way he explains and defines the second-generation ‘negation’ of earlier Romantic egoism. Anonymous Life is commanding and convincing, a most valuable contribution to Romantic literary studies and theoretical criticism.”

—Jerrold E. Hogle,
University of Arizona

$60.00 cloth

The Ridiculous Jew The Exploitation and Transformation of a Stereotype in Gogol, Turgenev, and Dostoevsky

GARY ROENSHIELD

“Rosenshield’s compelling new book is important because it demonstrates the maturation of the field of Russian-Jewish literary studies and forces the reader to look back and to look more carefully at Jewish images that may seem simply absurd or repellent. Given the current atmosphere in Russia, the experimentation by government and the populace with reinventing Russianness and the heightening of ethnic tensions, The Ridiculous Jew seems particularly relevant.”

—Gabriella Safran,
Stanford University

Acting Out

BERNARD STIEGLER Translated by DAVID BARISON

Acting Out is the first appearance in English of two short books published by Bernard Stiegler. In How I Became a Philosopher, he outlines his transformation during a five-year period of incarceration for armed robbery. Inspired by the Greek stoic Epictetus, Stiegler began to read, write, and discover his vocation, eventually studying philosophy in correspondence with Gérard Granel who was an important influence on a number of French philosophers, including Jacques Derrida, who was later Stiegler’s teacher. The second book, To Love, To Love Me, To Love Us, is a powerful distillation of Stiegler’s analysis of the contemporary world.

Technics and Time, 2 Disorientation

BERNARD STIEGLER Translated by STEPHEN
BARKER

“Disorientation, a most important piece of scholarly work, continues and adds to the development of the arguments set forth in the preceding volume of Technics and Time, putting a whole new set of clarifications into place. It will interest philosophers in general and should become required reading for anyone interested in cognitive science.”

Yale University Press
is pleased to announce the revival of the
YALE STUDIES IN ENGLISH SERIES

Yale Studies in English publishes books on English, American, and Anglophone literature developed in and by the Yale University community. Founded in 1898 by Albert Stanburrough Cook, the original series continued into the 1970's, producing such titles as The Poetry of Meditation by Louis Martz, Shelley's Mythmaking by Harold Bloom, The Cankered Muse by Alvin Kernan, The Hero of the Waverly Novels by Alexander Welsh, John Skelton's Poetry by Stanley Fish, and Sir Walter Raleigh: The Renaissance Man and his Roles by Stephen Greenblatt. With the goal of encouraging publications by emerging scholars alongside the work of established colleagues, the series has been revived for the twenty-first century with the support of a grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and in partnership with Yale University Press.

New in the series:

Wordsworth and the Poetry of What We Are

PAUL H. FRY

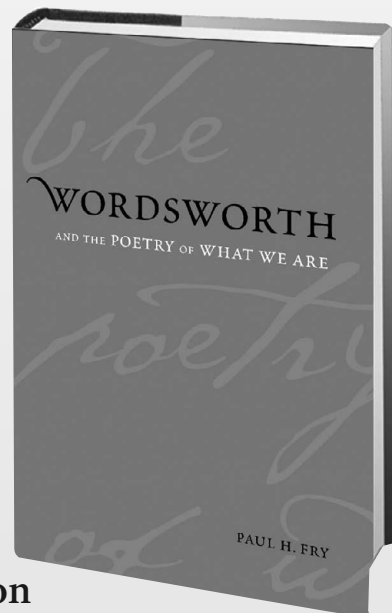

"In Fry's informed philosophical scrutiny of Wordsworth's poetry, the convergence of humanity and Nature prompts a sustained reflection about the role a non-human world plays in Wordsworth's, or any other, humanism. Fry clarifies and advances an ongoing revolution in the unsentimental appreciation of Wordsworth's greatness. He has made a decisive contribution not only to Wordsworth studies but also to our understanding of poetical thinking."

The Lewis Walpole Library and Yale University Press are pleased to announce:

❖ The Lewis Walpole Series in Eighteenth-Century Culture and History ❖

The Lewis Walpole Series, published by Yale University Press with the aid of the Annie Burr Lewis Fund, is dedicated to the culture and history of the long eighteenth century (from the Glorious Revolution to the accession of Queen Victoria). It welcomes work in a variety of fields, including literature and history, the visual arts, political philosophy, music, legal history and the history of science. In addition to original scholarly work, the series publishes new editions and translations of writing from the period, as well as reprints of major books that are currently unavailable. Though the majority of books in the series will probably concentrate on Great Britain and the Continent, the range of our geographical interests is as wide as Horace Walpole's.

Available Fall 2008:

New in cloth and paper

A MERCY ❖❖❖ TONI MORRISON

A POWERFUL TRAGEDY DISTILLED INTO A SMALL MASTERPIECE BY THE NOBEL PRIZE-WINNING AUTHOR OF BELOVED AND, LIKE A PRELUDE TO THAT STORY, SET TWO CENTURIES EARLIER.

In the 1680s the slave trade was still in its infancy. In the Americas, virulent religious and class division, prejudice and oppression were rife, providing the fertile soil in which slavery and race hatred were carefully planted and took root.

Jacob is an Anglo-Dutch trader and adventurer, with a small holding in the harsh North. Despite his distaste for dealing in “flesh,” he takes a small slave girl in part payment for a bad debt from a plantation owner in Catholic Maryland. Her slave mother has urged him to take her. This is Florens, “with the hands of a slave and the feet of a Portuguese lady,” who can read and write and might be useful on his farm. Rejected by her mother, Florens looks for love, first from Lina, an older servant woman at her new master’s house, but later from the handsome blacksmith, an African, never enslaved, who comes riding into their lives.

There are other voices: the native-American Lina, whose tribe was decimated by smallpox; their mistress, Rebekka, herself a victim of religious persecution back in England; and young Sorrow, daughter of a sea captain, who has spent too many years at sea to be quite . . . normal; and finally the devastating voice of Florens’s mother. These are all men and women inventing themselves in the wilderness.

A Mercy reveals what lies beneath the surface of slavery. But at its heart, like Beloved, it is the ambivalent, disturbing story of a mother and a daughter—a mother who casts off her daughter in order to save her, and a daughter who may never exorcise that abandonment.

The Friendship of Emily Dickinson and Thomas Wentworth Higginson

"White Heat is the story of a famous friendship in American Literature, but it is much more than that. Wineapple's decision to let Higginson's life carry the narrative, with Dickinson's work providing the light from within—the epiphanies—is a stroke of structural genius worthy of Dickinson herself. This brilliant and moving sortie is without question the best account of Emily Dickinson ever written. It is a great story, greatly told." —Robert D. Richardson

Two years after the best-selling Arthur & George, Julian Barnes gives us a masterfully playful and surprisingly hilarious memoir on mortality that touches on faith, science and family, as well as a rich array of exemplary figures who over the centuries have confronted the same questions he now poses about the most basic fact of life: its inevitable extinction.

RESURRECTING HEBREW

Ilan Stavans describes with revelatory insight how Hebrew was rescued from the fate of a dead language and became the native tongue of modern Israel. The resurrection of Hebrew raises urgent questions about Jewish survival, about the role language plays in Jewish life and in human history. These questions lead Stavans not merely into the life of modern Hebrew and contemporary Israel but into the ancient past, into questions about the origins of Israel itself and the language spoken by those in the ancient kingdom.

The Intonation of Castilian Spanish Declaratives and Absolute Interrogatives

Timothy L. Face, University of Minnesota

The Intonation of Castilian Spanish Declaratives and Absolute Interrogatives sets out to provide the most complete description of the intonation patterns of Castilian Spanish declaratives and absolute interrogatives that has been presented to date. Speech production data is compiled and examined to determine the physical characteristics of the intonation patterns of these sentence types in both broad focus and in narrow focus contexts, allowing for as complete an understanding of the intonation patterns presented by declaratives and absolute interrogatives as is currently possible. Speech perception data is also presented in order to address the differences between the intonation patterns of declaratives and absolute interrogatives from the perspective of the listener, showing the degree to which each of these differences is meaningful in communication. While the primary goal of the book is to present a solid description of the intonation patterns, the implications of the data for any potential phonological analysis of the intonation patterns are also considered.

Discourse, genre and rhetoric: The French verb in research writing in science and technology

Anthony J. Liddicoat, University of South Australia

This book examines the rhetorical function of French verb forms in scientific writing. It includes both statistical descriptions of the frequency of verb forms and also examines their semantic function as this applies to communicating about science and technology in French. The book takes as its core argument the idea that grammatical choices are meaningful for the creation of text and are deployed to construct particular understandings of the information communicated. The language used in communicating science is distinctive and patterns of language use in scientific writing are different from those of other sorts of texts. In order to examine the functionality of grammar and its relations to communicative purposes, this book takes as its starting point the idea that grammar is not unitary, that is grammatical structures are not invariable in their meaning. While the forms of language structure may be identical in general and specialized varieties of a language, the meanings of these constructions are not. The book's semantically-based view of grammar allows grammar to be seen not as a linguistic given determined by structural conventions, but rather as a symbolic activity which is determined by and is determining of communicative practices.

The development of Italian accusative and dative clitics in interlanguage grammars

Maurizio Santoro, City University of New York

The research reported in this monograph portrays quite an interesting acquisition process with regard to the development of Italian clitics in L2 grammars, and, as such, shed some clearer light on several issues that are still unaccounted for. For instance, although there is a general consensus on their slow development, L2 acquisitionists do not seem to agree on what may cause such a delay and what their initial acquisition stage might be. Are clitic properties entirely (Full Transfer/Full Access Hypothesis: Schwartz and Sprouse 1996), or partially accessed through L1 categories (Missing Surface Inflection Hypothesis: Lardière 1998b), or derived directly from learners' universal knowledge (Full Access Hypothesis, Epstein et al. 1996)?

Results show that these properties are not totally attained through L1 categories. Learners' native language grammar does influence the acquisition of these pronouns, but it does not entirely constitute their initial stage. Their acquisition delay may be attributed to several factors, namely (i) a general difficulty to 'convert' the syntactic information into appropriate morphological forms, and (ii) the intrinsic complexity of the cliticization process. Furthermore, regarding the issue of accessibility to Universal Grammar in adult age, data seem to justify some form of continuity since clitics, although absent in L1, are fully acquired.

Women Writers and Old Age in Great Britain, 1750–1850

Devoney Looser

This groundbreaking study explores the later lives and late-life writings of more than two dozen British women authors active during the long eighteenth century. Devoney Looser finds that far from fading into moribund old age, female literary greats such as Anna Letitia Barbauld, Frances Burney, Maria Edgeworth, Catharine Macaulay, Hester Lynch Piozzi, and Jane Porter toiled for decades after they achieved acclaim—despite seemingly concerted attempts by literary gatekeepers to marginalize their later contributions.

In assessing how these writers affected and were affected by the culture in which they lived, and in examining their varied reactions to the prospect of aging, Looser constructs careful portraits of each of her subjects and explains why many turned toward retrospection in their later works.

The Hidden Adult

Defining Children's Literature

Perry Nodelman

“Perry Nodelman is a leading scholar of children's literature and The Hidden Adult is arguably his magnum opus.”

—Beverly Lyon Clark, author of Kiddie Lit: The Cultural Construction of Children's Literature in America

What exactly is a children's book? How is children's literature defined as a genre? Nodelman presents close readings of six classic stories to answer these questions and offer a clear definition of children's writing as a distinct literary form.

The Odes of Horace

translated by Jeffrey H. Kaimowitz

introduction by Ronnie Ancona

This groundbreaking new translation of Horace's most widely read collection of poetry is rendered in modern, metrical English verse rather than the more common free verse translations. Jeffrey H. Kaimowitz adapts the Roman poet's rich and metrically varied poetry to English formal verse, reproducing the works in a way that maintains fidelity to the tone, timbre, and style of the originals while conforming to the rules of English prosody.

James M. Osborn Post-doctoral Fellowship in British Studies

For the academic year 2009-2010, this long-term fellowship is open to scholars of British history, literature, society or culture in any period from the Middle Ages through the end of the Twentieth Century who will devote the term of the fellowship to research in the Beinecke Library's extensive collection of books, manuscripts, prints, and original art concerning the literature, history, and culture of the British Isles.

The Osborn Fellowship provides a stipend of $45,000 and a residential apartment within walking distance of the Library. The Osborn Fellow will be expected to take up residence in New Haven in July, 2009, to conduct research in Beinecke Library on a consistent basis, and to participate in the intellectual life of the Yale community through June, 2010. Applicants must have received their Ph.D. (or equivalent degree) between September 1, 2002 and January 14, 2009.

The application deadline for the Osborn Fellowship is January 15, 2009.

Short-term Fellowships For Visiting Scholars

Visiting Fellowships are offered to support visiting scholars pursuing post-doctoral or equivalent research in Beinecke collections. Students enrolled in degree programs are ineligible.

Normally granted for one month, Visiting Fellowships must be taken up between September 1, 2009 and May 31, 2010. Recipients are expected to be in residence during the period of their award and are encouraged to participate in the activities of Yale University.

Visiting Fellowships pay for travel costs to and from New Haven and a living allowance of $4,500 per month, and are designed to provide access to the library for scholars who live outside the greater New Haven area.

Research projects for this fellowship may be proposed in a wide range of subjects including but not limited to Western Americana; modern German literature; English or American literature; American religious history; medieval, Renaissance, and 18th century studies; music, photography, art history; modernism in art and literature; early books, manuscripts, and papyri; 18th-century British studies; American bibliography and history of the book; history of printing; American children's literature.

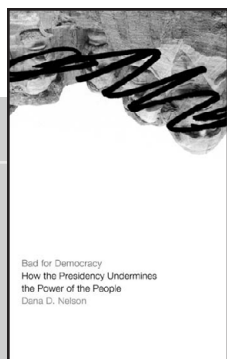

The application deadline for Visiting Fellowships is December 15, 2008.

New in The Library of America

John Ashbery

Collected Poems 1956–1987

the first authoritative edition of our preeminent living poet, including nearly a hundred pages of long-unavailable uncollected poems

Mark Ford, editor With this volume, The Library of America inaugurates a collected edition of the works of America's preeminent living poet. Beginning with Some Trees in 1956, John Ashbery has charted a profoundly original course that has opened up pathways for subsequent generations of poets. At once hermetic and exuberantly curious, meditative and unnervingly funny, dreamlike and steeped in everyday realities, and alive to every nuance of American speech, these are poems that constantly discover new worlds within language. This first volume of the collected Ashbery includes the complete texts of his first twelve books, including such groundbreaking collections as Rivers and Mountains, Three Poems, Self-Portrait in a Convex Mirror (which won the Pulitzer Prize, the National Book Award, and the National Book Critics Circle Award in 1976), and Houseboat Days. It also features an unprecedented gathering of more than sixty previously uncollected poems written over a period of four decades, a rare treasure trove for poetry lovers. This volume is a landmark portrait of a modern master.

The Political Imagination in History

Essays concerning J.G.A. Pocock

J.G.A. Pocock is the greatest historian of political thought of our time. His writings belong to a tradition in the humanities which has looked to the research university as its sign and symbol. This volume throws into relief Pocock's procedures and concerns. Edited by D.N. DeLuna assisted by Perry Anderson and Glenn Burgess, it offers a comprehensive appraisal of his writings. The contributing essayists work in diverse fields in history and literature: Glenn Burgess, J.C.D. Clark, D.N. DeLuna, J.A.W. Gunn, Robert D. Hume, Michael McKeon, Gordon Schochet, and J.G.A. Pocock himself.

For more than twenty years, A Guide to Documentary Editing has proven an invaluable tool for scholarly editors, editors-in-training, readers of documentary editions, and other students of American history and literature. This new, extensively revised edition of the Guide arrives in the midst of great change in the field. In addition to exploring fully the increasingly central role electronic technology plays in the editing process, this edition provides the most current treatment of the craft's fundamental issues.

The most innovative aspect of this latest edition of the Guide is a new digital component. Users may access the entire contents online through a dedicated Web site available exclusively to purchasers of the print edition. In addition to offering the convenience of easy online access, this Web edition will include hyperlinks to relevant literature and will act as an archive for material from earlier editions. Most important, it will be periodically revised and updated, to ensure a Guide that is always current with best practice.

CAGE – Astrid Cabral, trans. Alexis Levitin

In this first-ever bilingual edition of Cage, eminent Brazilian poet Astrid Cabral is an insightful and irreverent guide to the natural world, leading the beguiled reader through landscapes of rare and surprising beauty. From serpents to seahorses, and from the wilds of the Amazon to the orderly realm of suburbia, these poems urge us to consider our surroundings with empathy and attentiveness. Cabral's complex, multifaceted verse glints with compressed energy, offering a densely layered vision in which simplicity is deceptive and conclusions are likely to be double-edged. A poet of considerable imaginative gifts and metaphysical flair, Astrid Cabral has produced a work of cauterizing beauty. In this perfectly orchestrated volume, each poem enriches and expands the poems that surround it.

THE YOUNG MAN FROM SAVOY – C-F Ramuz, trans. Blake Robinson

The Young Man from Savoy is the story of Joseph Jacquet, “a young man unlike others.” The existence of this village boy, hired out as a hand on a schooner, seems fated to unravel from the moment he glimpses the mesmerizing Miss Anabella, a high-wire artiste with a traveling circus. She becomes the object of Joseph's fantasizing obsession, and a catalyst for the bizarre and brutal acts that ensue.

Set at the beginning of the twentieth century in a French mountainside village overlooking Lake Geneva, this tale of all-consuming love plays out against a backdrop that is at once idyllic and askew. Vividly imagined and masterfully wrought, The Young Man from Savoy is a meditative page-turner, a novel whose spare, mutedly lyrical prose stands in contrast to the dramatic tale it recounts. In this remarkable work, acclaimed French Swiss writer C-F Ramuz has left us a lasting legacy, a work of laconic and unsettling power.

THE OLD MAN'S VERSES – Ivan Diviš, trans. Deborah Garfinkle

Adopting the persona of the eponymous old man, celebrated Czech poet Ivan Diviš writes of the comfort of memory, the nature of faith, and the pain of exile. With alternating lines of earthy vulgarity and lyric transcendence, the poems in this moving collection expose the longing, pathos and absurdity of human existence. Diviš confronts the ruins of the past with dark humor, and courageously awaits his final judgment. Available to English-speaking audiences for the first time, The Old Man's Verses is a moving collection from one of the twentieth century's most extraordinary poets.

“A stylish, readable, and important intervention in early modern studies. In recalling a past that never was, it invites us to a future that might not be the same.”—Jonathan Goldberg, Emory University

Jonathan Gil Harris challenges the way in which we conventionally understand the temporality of physical objects. Turning to Renaissance theories of matter, he focuses particularly on Shakespeare’s stage materials as things inherited, recycled, repurposed.

Cultures and Institutions in Motion

During the academic years 2008/09 and 2009/10 the Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Historical Studies will focus on the problem of cultures and institutions in motion. How have ideas, institutions, structures, and artifacts moved across social and geographical space? How have they intersected with their new environments? How have they been adapted, resituated, hybridized, and transformed in processes of motion? The field of inquiry includes transnational history but is not limited to it. Problems could include the diffusion of religious and cultural practices, the migration of technologies and objects, the circulation of ideas, traditions, and aesthetic forms, the transfer of policies and legal practices, the dynamics of traveling social movements, histories of reception, appropriation, and encounter, and the creation of translocal networks and intermediaries. As in the past, we hope to address this problem from a wide variety of periods and places, from prehistory to the present and from all parts of the world. Scholars from all disciplines with an interest in the topic as an historical phenomenon are invited to apply.

The Center will offer a limited number of research fellowships for one or two semesters, running from September to January and from February to June, designed both for senior scholars and for highly recommended early career scholars who have finished their dissertations by the application deadlines. Fellows are expected to live in Princeton in order to take an active part in the intellectual interchange with other members of the Seminar. Funds are limited, and candidates are, therefore, strongly urged to apply to other grant-giving institutions as well as the Center, if they wish to come for a full year.

Written inquiries should be addressed to the Manager, Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Historical Studies, Department of History, 136 Dickinson Hall, Princeton University, Princeton, NJ 08544-1017, U.S.A. The deadline for applications and letters of recommendation for fellowships for 2009/2010 is December 1, 2008. Scholars who would like to offer a paper to one of the weekly Seminars are asked to send a brief description of their proposal and current curriculum vitae to the Director.

Programme examiner

The International Baccalaureate (IB) is a recognized leader in the field of international education, encouraging students to be active learners, well-rounded individuals and engaged world citizens. Founded in 1968, the IB currently works with 2,363 schools in 128 countries to develop and offer three challenging programmes to more than 637,000 students aged 3 to 19 years. As a consequence of continued growth in the number of candidates entering the IB Diploma Programme for the 16 to 19 year age group, the IB is seeking applications from professional educators worldwide to become assistant examiners.

Becoming an IB examiner will help your professional development; you will receive invaluable training to prepare you for your new role, learn from our senior examiners and gain an insight into the IB assessment process.

We are currently recruiting examiners in most language subjects including English, Spanish, German and Chinese for the May 2009 examination session. We also welcome applications in other subjects especially those highlighted on our website.

Previous experience of examining is desirable, but not essential. All applicants must have an email address and access to the Internet in an environment that is suitable for marking examination material.
