tory of U.S. foreign policy and the documents recording that history, recently issued its annual report and urged all federal agencies to comply with existing declassification requirements so that Foreign Relations can continue to stand as “world’s most honest, full, and professional published collection” of official foreign policy documents.

Noting that their mandate requires them to ensure the Foreign Relations volumes are “comprehensive” and “accurate,” the committee fears that intelligence agencies’ unwillingness to release documents detailing overseas activities will require them to recommend against publication of future volumes because the conscious omission of such documents will make the volumes “so incomplete and misleading as to constitute an official lie.”

Summaries of published volumes in the Foreign Relations series are available on the U.S. Department of State’s web site (www.state.gov/www/about\_state/history/frus.html).

The American Political Science Association is represented on the committee by Benton Vincent Davis Jr., University of Kentucky.
