

ADDENDUM

African resistance to the International Criminal Court: Halting the advance of the anti-impunity norm

ADDENDUM

Kurt Mills and Alan Bloomfield

doi:10.1017/S0260210517000407, published online by Cambridge University Press, 23 August 2017.

In the original publication of this article<sup>1</sup>, the acknowledgement of a co-editor was omitted from Alan Bloomfield's biographical information. The correct statement is as follows:

Alan Bloomfield is Lecturer at the University of Western Australia. He researches Australian and Indian foreign policy. His first book, India and the Responsibility to Protect, was published by Ashgate in 2015. He also researches international norms, in particular the Responsibility to Protect or 'R2P' norm, as well as norm dynamics theory, and he co-edited (with Shirley Scott) the 2017 Routledge book Norm Antipreneurs and the Politics of Resistance to Global Normative Change. He has also published articles in leading journals, including Review of International Studies; Pacific Review; Contemporary Security Policy; Australian Journal of Politics and History; and India Review.

The authors would like to apologise for this omission.

---

<sup>1</sup>Kurt Mills and Alan Bloomfield, 'African resistance to the International Criminal Court: Halting the advance of the anti-impunity norm', Review of International Studies, 44:1 (2018), pp. 101–27, available at: doi: 10.1017/S0260210517000407