Interpretation and Theology in Spenser

Darryl J. Gless

The extent to which a knowledge of sixteenth-century theological doctrines can help readers interpret the works of Edmund Spenser has long been a matter of controversy. In this study, Gless demonstrates the seldom-admitted fact that theological texts, like literary ones, are subject to the interpretive activity of readers. Informed by this approach to Elizabethan theology, he then develops a thorough analysis of the first book of The Faerie Queene, and shows how theological perspectives can enrich later passages of Spenser's great poem.

Milton, the Metaphysicals, and Romanticism

Lisa Low and

Anthony John Harding, Editors

Both the English Civil War and the French Revolution produced literature reflecting belief in the arrival of a better world, and new philosophies of the relationship among mind, language, and cosmos. These essays explore the influences of seventeenth-century poets on Romantic writers, and offer a challenging assessment of the relationship between two of the richest periods of British literary history.

Musica Getutsch

A Treatise on Musical Instruments
(1511)

Sebastian Virdung

Beth Bullard, Editor

"Beth Bullard has done an admirable job of presenting the life and work of Sebastian Virdung to a modern audience. Her care of detail and the clarity in which she helped create a more focused view of Renaissance music as well as a slice of Renaissance society, is superb. This is a book for students of music and history alike."

Pastoral and the Poetics of Self-Contradiction

Theocritus to Marvell

Judith Haber

The traditional view of pastoral as a static genre, aimed at the recreation of an idyllic past, has recently been challenged by historicist critics. Here Judith Haber complicates the opposition between humanist and historicist perspectives by examining ways in which pastoral poets themselves interrogate the contradictory relations inherent in their genre. Focusing on texts by Theocritus, Virgil, Sidney, and Marvell, Haber revises current understanding of pastoral, and raises wider questions about literature in society and the establishment of literary tradition.

From Renaissance Monarchy to Absolute Monarchy

French Kings, Nobles, and Estates

J. RUSSELL MAJOR

Scholars of early modern France have traditionally seen an alliance between the kings and the bourgeoisie leading to an absolute, centralized monarchy, perhaps as early as the reign of Francis I (1515–47). J. Russell Major draws on forty-five years of research to dispute this view, offering both a masterful synthesis of existing scholarship and a fresh interpretation of the complex chain of events that set the stage for the politics of the French Revolution.

INWARDNESS AND THEATER IN THE ENGLISH RENAISSANCE

KATHARINE EISAMAN MAUS

"Maus's elegant study provides impressive evidence for the significant existence of inwardness in various Renaissance domains. She imaginatively explores the problematic connections between inwardness and theatricality as these are made manifest in the drama's relation to religious, political, and legal crises and discourses."—Mary Beth Rose, Director, Center for Renaissance Studies, the Newberry Library

THE RENAISSANCE ANTICHRIST

Luca Signorelli's Orvieto
Frescoes

Jonathan B. Riess

A major monument, Luca Signorelli's Orvieto Cathedral frescoes rendered with vigor and invective the most ambitious consideration of the Apocalypse and the Last Judgment in Italian Renaissance art. In a fresh interpretation of these frescoes, Jonathan Riess explores the intriguing, violent style and complex iconography and places the works in their richly faceted historical setting. The book centers on the mural depicting the Rule of Antichrist, the single monumental portrayal of the subject during the Renaissance and a revealing indicator of widespread apocalyptic obsessions.

"The subject matter is fascinating and very useful in introducing the art and culture of Italy as the sixteenth century began to unfold."

A TRIBUTE TO ROBERT A. KOCH

Studies in the Northern Renaissance

Gregory T. Clark et al.

In this collection honoring Robert A. Koch, Professor Emeritus at Princeton University, eight of his former students employ a variety of methods to investigate topics in Northern Renaissance art and society. Drawing on approaches as disparate as archival research and mycology, these papers reflect the richly varied modes of inquiry currently being pursued in Northern Renaissance studies.

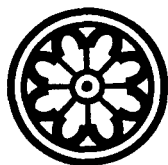

Contributors include Gregory Clark, Charles Minott, Lynn Jacobs, David Farmer, Craig Harbison, Dorothy Limouze, John Hand, and Burr Wallen.

RIGHT THINKING AND SACRED ORATORY IN COUNTER- REFORMATION ROME

Frederick J. McGinness

New in paperback

Winner of the Bainton Book Prize sponsored by the Sixteenth Century Studies Conference

ERASMUS, MAN OF LETTERS

The Construction of Charisma in Print
Lisa Jardine

At the end of the sixteenth century, when painters, writers, and scientists from all over Europe flocked to Rome for creative inspiration, the city was also becoming the center of a vibrant and assertive Roman Catholic culture. Closely identified with Rome, the Counter-Reformation church sought to strengthen itself by building on Rome's symbolic value and broadcasting its cultural message loudly and skillfully to the European world.

In a book that captures the texture and flavor of this rhetorical strategy, Frederick McGinness explores the new emphasis placed on preaching by Roman church leaders. Looking at the development of a sacred oratory designed to move the heart, he traces the formation of a long-lasting Catholic worldview and reveals the ingenuity of the Counter-Reformation in the transformation of Renaissance humanism.

Cloth: $49.50 ISBN 0-691-03426-5

The name Erasmus of Rotterdam conjures up a golden age of scholarly integrity. However, as Lisa Jardine portrays him, Erasmus self-consciously created his own reputation as the central figure of the European intellectual world.

"Jardine's spirited study exploits the evidence of Erasmus's own statements about himself, direct and oblique, and the estimates of his situation in the great tradition that he influenced others to make. . . [Her portrait of Erasmus] is taken under a raking light, to show a master of the media [and] a master-builder of a textual persona, of an intellectual genealogy culminating in himself."
