

THE CONTRIBUTORS

Ming-sho Ho is professor in the Department of Sociology, National Taiwan University. He researches environmental and labor issues in Taiwan. His recent publications include Working Class Formation in Taiwan: Fractured Solidarity in State-Owned Enterprises, 1945–2012.

Yusaku Horiuchi is associate professor in the Department of Government at Dartmouth College and holds the Mitsui Chair in the Study of Japan. His research interests include comparative politics and political methodology. He is the author of Institutions, Incentives and Electoral Participation in Japan: Cross-Level and Cross-National Perspectives (2005) and has published articles in American Journal of Political Science, American Political Science Review, Journal of Politics, Quarterly Journal of Political Science, and World Politics, among others.

Minggang Peng is assistant professor in the Public Administration School at Guangzhou University. Peng received his PhD in political science from the Chinese University of Hong Kong. His research interests include public budgeting, financial management, and environmental politics in China. Contact him at pengminggang@gmail.com.

Jun Saito is CEO and president of J Prep. He was formerly assistant professor of political science at Yale University and adjunct professor at Korea University. He is a winner of the 2011 Nikkei Prize for publications in economics. He was also a member of the House of Representatives of the Japanese Diet from 2002 to 2003. His research expertise pertains to Japanese electoral and legislative politics.

Jae Hyeok Shin is assistant professor of political science and international relations at Korea University. He teaches courses in political institutions and Southeast Asian politics. He received his PhD in political science from the University of California, Los Angeles in 2011. His research interests include electoral systems, parties, legislative politics, and political/economic development in new democracies especially in East and Southeast Asia. His works have appeared in journals including Political Science Quarterly and Democratization.

Juan Wang is assistant professor of political science at McGill University.

Stan Hok-wui Wong is assistant professor at the Chinese University of Hong Kong. His research interests center on authoritarian politics and democratization. His articles have appeared in Electoral Studies, China Review, and Journal of Contemporary Asia. He is also author of a forthcoming book, Electoral Politics in Post-1997 Hong Kong: Protest, Patronage, and the Media.

Kyohei Yamada is assistant professor in the Graduate School of International Relations at International University of Japan. His research interests include comparative politics, intergovernmental relations, and Japanese politics.