
CONTRIBUTORS

Christ Carl took his B.S. in physics and his Ph.D. in economics. He has taught physics at Princeton, and economics at Johns Hopkins and the universities of Chicago, Essex, and Tokyo. His main work has been in econometrics, especially the testing of econometric models, and in monetary and fiscal policy, especially government budget restraint.

Christman John is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Pennsylvania State University. He is the author of The Myth of Property: Toward an Egalitarian Theory of Ownership (OUP, 1994) and the editor of The Inner Citadel: Essays on Individual Autonomy (OUP, 1989). He has written on various issues concerning distributive justice, autonomy, liberalism, and equality.

Cowen Tyler is Holbert C. Harris Professor of Economics at George Mason University. He is published widely in economics and philosophy, and is the author of several books including, In Praise of Commercial Culture, What Price Fame? and the forthcoming Minerva's Owl: Sources of Creative Global Culture (Princeton University Press, 2002). He is also Director of the Mercatus Center and the James M. Buchanan Center for Political Economy.

Fisher Franklin M. is the Jane Berkowitz Carlton and Dennis William Carlton Professor of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a past President of the Econometric Society and a recipient of the John Bates Clark award of the American Economic Association. He holds a Ph.D. from Harvard and an honorary doctor's degree from The Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Grant Ruth W. is Associate Professor of Political Science at Duke University. She specializes in political theory with particular interest in political ethics and early modern thought. Her publications include John Locke's Liberalism (University of Chicago Press, 1987) and Hypocrisy and Integrity: Machiavelli, Rousseau and the Ethics of Politics (University of Chicago Press, 1997).

Hoover Kevin D. is Professor of Economics at the University of California, Davis. He is the author of numerous articles in macroeconomics, monetary economics, economic methodology and the philosophy of science. His most recent books are Causality in Macroeconomics and the Methodology of Empirical Macroeconomics (both Cambridge University Press, 2001). He is President-elect of the History of Economics Society, immediate past Chair of the International Network for Economic Method, and an editor of the Journal of Economic Methodology.

Hardin Russell is Professor of Politics at New York University and of Political Science at Stanford University. He is the author of Collective Action (1982), Morality within the Limits of Reason (1988), One for All (1995), Liberalism, Constitutionalism, and Democracy (1999), Trust and Trustworthiness and Indeterminacy and Society (both forthcoming).

List Christian is Postdoctoral Research Fellow at Nuffield College, Oxford. He is author of a number of articles, including 'Two concepts of agreement' (forthcoming in PEGS: The Good Society), 'Epistemic democracy: generalizing the Condorcet Jury Theorem' (with Robert E. Goodin, in the Journal of Political Philosophy, 2001), and 'Introducing a "Zero-Line" of welfare as an escape-route from Arrow's Theorem' (in the Pacific Economic Review, special issue in honour of Amartya Sen, 2001).

Morgan Mary S. is Professor of History of Economics at the London School of Economics and Professor of History and Philosophy of Economics at the University of Amsterdam. She has published on methodological and historical aspects of econometrics, the history of American economics and the formation of 'modern' economics. She has recently held a British Academy Research Readership to work on historical and philosophical aspects of economics as a model-building and model-using science.

Pettit Philip is Professor of Social and Political Theory at the Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University. He is author of a number of books, including Republicanism: A Theory of Freedom and Government (OUP, 1997), Three Methods of Ethics (Routledge, 1997, with M. Baron and M. Slote), The Common Mind: An Essay on Psychology, Society and Politics (OUP, 1993), and A Theory of Freedom: From the Psychology to the Politics of Agency (Polity Press, UK and OUP, USA, 2001).

Posner Eric is Professor of Law, University of Chicago. He is author of Law and Social Norms (Harvard University Press, 2000), and editor of Chicago Lectures in Law and Economics (Foundation Press, 2000) and (with Matthew Adler) Cost-Benefit Analysis: Legal, Economics, and Philosophical Perspectives (University of Chicago Press, 2001). He is also an editor of the Journal of Legal Studies.

Qizilbash Mozaffar teaches economics at the University of East Anglia. His research focuses on economics and philosophy and development economics, particularly in the areas of well-being, rationality, poverty, human development, the environment and corruption.

Renault Eric recently joined the Department of Economics at the University of Montréal as full professor. He is also a Fellow of the Econometric Society. His research centres on finance and time series, particularly econometric models and statistical methods for the purpose of option pricing. He is the author or co-author of several surveys in this area including a chapter in the Handbook of Statistics, an invited lecture at the 1995 World Meeting of the Econometric Society and a chapter in the forthcoming Handbook of Financial Econometrics. He is on the editorial board of several journals, including Econometrica and Economics and Philosophy, and is Co-Editor-in-Chief of the forthcoming Journal of Financial Econometrics.

Shapiro Scott J. is Professor of Law at the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law, Yeshiva University. His current research focuses on the rationality of rule-guided behavior, as well as the nature of law and legal systems.

Sugden Robert is Leverhulme Research Professor at the University of East Anglia, Norwich. His research uses a combination of theoretical, experimental and philosophical methods to investigate issues in welfare economics, social choice, choice under uncertainty, the foundations of decision and game theory, the methodology of economics, and the evolution of social conventions.

Sutton John is the Sir John Hicks Professor of Economics at the London School of Economics, where he directs the Economics of Industry Group. His main interest in recent years has been in understanding the determinants of market structure, a topic developed in his Sunk Costs and Market Structure (1991) and Technology and Market Structure: Theory and History (1998).