ALTERNATIVES

A Journal of World Policy

Editors: Richard A. Falk, Rajni Kothari

ALTERNATIVES is a quarterly journal devoted to the multiplicity of critical problems which transcend the borders of nation-states and are beyond the ability of any one country to solve—war, hunger and poverty, ecological decay, and social repression. Sponsored by the World Order Models Project (WOMP), the journal presents policy-relevant articles which combine the skills of renowned scholars with the moral commitment of concerned individuals in a literate and readable style. It is designed for readers around the world whose concerns include the fate of humanity and the planet we inhabit.

Forthcoming Articles:

- Fouad Ajami on Human Rights
- Richard A. Falk on Nuclear Proliferation as a World Order Problem
- Saul Mendlovitz and Rajni Kothari on a Movement for a Just World Order
- Cheryl Christensen on World Food Policy
- 1977 State of the Globe Report, prepared by Ali Mazrui

Subscriptions: Individuals, $15 per year; Libraries and Institutions, $30 per year.

Blue-Collar Soldiers?

Unionization and the U.S. Military

Edited by Alan Ned Sabrosky

A unionized U.S. military is a very real possibility. Military unions would have a dramatic effect on our military institutions and on the character of civil-military relations in America. A national debate on the issue is almost certain.

The essays in this book examine the complex arguments pro and con and describe the likely impact of military unions on the functional effectiveness and political responsiveness of our armed forces.

■ Beyond Dependency: The Developing World Speaks Out

edited by Guy F. Erb and Valeriana Kallab, with essays by Mahbub ul Haq, Ali A. Mazrui, Samuel L. Parmar, Félix Peña, Krishna Roy, Soedjatmoko, Soumana Traoré, Constantine V. Vaitsos, and Bension Varón

The essays included in this volume offer a rare opportunity for a direct encounter with the personal views of developing-country experts on most of the subjects of long-term North-South contention: the activities of multinational enterprises in the developing world, foreign investment and the transfer of productive knowledge, the use of the resources of the sea, appropriate population policies, and the effectiveness of different development strategies.

The book's appendices provide the complete texts of the major nongovernmental statements and official declarations of 1974-75 that document the developing world's campaign for a "new international economic order." October 1975 239 pp. Paperback: $3.95

■ The Uncertain Promise: Value Conflicts in Technology Transfer

by Denis Goulet

published for the ODC by IDOC/North America

This study on conflicts of interests and values in international "technology transfers" analyzes the workings of technological dependency. Its broad policy recommendations are presented in the context of efforts to create a new international economic order and to make technology itself serve sound developmental ends rather than mere commercial imperatives. December 1977 336 pp. Paperback: $5.95 Hardback: $12.95

■ Looking at Guinea-Bissau: A New Nation's Development Strategy

by Denis Goulet

How does a newly independent African nation, poor in resources, progressively win greater autonomy in defining its own path to development and its own political identity? This paper concludes that, notwithstanding many difficulties, Guinea-Bissau exemplifies a hopeful "alternative development strategy." December 1977 64 pp. $2.50

■ The United States and World Development: Agenda 1977

by John W. Sewell and the staff of the Overseas Development Council

ODC's annual assessment of current decisions facing the U.S. in its relations with the developing countries. Individual chapters discuss: the background for the major policy questions facing the Carter Administration; an analysis of three possible policy options; and specific policy recommendations on more than a dozen development issues. Over 90 pages of statistical annexes. March 1977 272 pp. Paperback: $4.95 Hardback: $16.50
