ON THE USES OF MILITARY POWER
IN THE NUCLEAR AGE

BY KLAUS KNORR

Professor Knorr examines trends in the values which nations derive in their international relationships from the possession and use of both nuclear and non-nuclear military forces, and suggests that territorial conquest and the furtherance of economic benefits by military means have generally diminished in appeal. He inquires into the costs and disadvantages of military power—the greatly reduced security obtainable even by the major nuclear powers and the noticeable diminution in the legitimacy of international violence in its several forms. Klaus Knorr is Professor of Economics and Director of the Center of International Studies, Princeton University.

DIVISION AND COHESION IN
DEMOCRACY, A Study of Norway

BY HARRY ECKSTEIN

To understand what conditions make democracies stable or unstable, effective or ineffective, Professor Eckstein examines the stability and effectiveness of Norwegian democracy. He finds them both to be high. He then examines several theories derived from the study of other democracies or from comparative studies of other democratic and nondemocratic societies. Virtually all present an inadequate explanation of the Norwegian case, because the political divisions in Norway are the kind usually associated with instability and ineffectiveness of democratic rule. The author explains, however, that a profound sense of community exists despite the political cleavages. Harry Eckstein is Professor of Politics, Princeton University.
