

CONTENTS

Editors' introduction to Hume in Alberta Amy M. Schmitter	1
From Cudworth to Hume: Cambridge Platonism and the Scottish Enlightenment Sarah Hutton	8
Hume and the nominalist tradition Deborah Brown	27
Hume's nominalism and the Copy Principle Ruth Weintraub	45
Hume as a trope nominalist Jani Hakkarainen	55
Hume on presentation and philosophy Maité Cruz Tleugabulova	67
The ontology of character traits in Hume Erin Frykholm	82
The simple duality: Humean passions Hsueh Qu	98
The inertness of reason and Hume's legacy Elizabeth S. Radcliffe	117
Motivating Hume's natural virtues Philip A. Reed	134
Hume's "Wilt Chamberlain Argument" and taxation Kenneth Henley	148
Hume, a Scottish Locke? Comments on Terence Penelhum's Hume Donald C. Ainslie	161
The idea of the self in the evolution of Hume's account of the passions Jane McIntyre	171
The 'true religion' of the sceptic: Penelhum reading Hume's Dialogues Willem Lemmens	183
Hume, Locke and consciousness Terence Penelhum	198
The self and the passions Terence Penelhum	204
Hume's atheism and the role of Cleanthes Terence Penelhum	206