International Theory

A Journal of International Politics, Law and Philosophy

journals.cambridge.org/int

Editors

Duncan Snidal, University of Chicago

Alexander Wendt, The Ohio State University

Launching in 2009, International Theory invites papers on theory of all varieties and from all disciplines, provided it addresses problems of politics, broadly defined and relates to the international.

International Theory welcomes scholarship that uses evidence from the real world to advance theoretical arguments. However, it is intended as a forum where scholars can develop theoretical arguments in depth without an expectation of extensive empirical analysis.

Full instructions for contributors can be found here: journals.cambridge.org/int/ifc

Manuscripts for consideration or any queries should be sent by email to the Editors at it.mershon@osu.edu

Cover Art: Mike White, organizes bread that will be delivered to the community at the Bishop Cosgrove Center in Cleveland (August 29, 2006). White works as a volunteer for Cleveland Catholic Charities, which served over 128,000 meals in 2005 to the homeless and working poor. Cleveland returned to the top of the U.S. Census Bureau's ranking of poorest big cities, reclaiming the unwanted title from Detroit. Cleveland had 32.4 percent of its 452,200 people living below the poverty level in 2005, according to the American Community Survey. (AP Photo/Tony Dejak)

Philosophy for Perspectives on Politics

Perspectives on Politics is a journal of political science that seeks to provide political insight on important problems, as it emerges from rigorous, broad-based research and integrative thought. The editors anticipate authors and readers primarily consisting of political scientists, but also including journalists, policy analysts, public officials and their staff, and other social scientists.

Perspectives enables members of different subfields to speak with one another—and with knowledgeable people outside the discipline—on issues of common interest. Each article must be accessible to and meaningful for readers with much general knowledge of politics but with no specific knowledge of the issue at hand.

The editors aspire to publish contributions that are engaging, illuminating, provocative, and broad-based while retaining the highest standards of scholarly excellence. The editors warmly invite suggestions for articles, symposia, reviews, commentary, and dialogues, as well as other ideas, from political scientists and others concerned with the use of research and careful thinking to address crucial issues and values in the realms of power and politics.

Submission and Review

For submission guidelines, please see the journal's full-length statement of philosophy at www.apsanet.org/perspectives.

Our editorial team discusses all submissions. Those that seem promising are evaluated by several external reviewers—with full confidentiality on both sides—and then accepted, returned for further revisions, or rejected.

About APSA

Founded in 1903, the American Political Science Association is the leading professional organization for the study of political science and serves more than 15,000 members in over 80 countries. With a range of programs and services for individuals, departments, and institutions, APSA brings together political scientists from all fields of inquiry, regions, and occupational endeavors within and outside academe in order to expand awareness and understanding of politics.

The direct advancement of knowledge is at the core of APSA activities. We promote scholarly communication in political science through a variety of initiatives including publishing three distinguished journals: American Political Science Review, Perspectives on Politics, and PS: Political Science and Politics.

Make plans to attend the 2010 APSA Annual Meeting!

Proposal Submission Deadline: December 15, 2009

2010 APSA Annual Meeting & Exhibition

Washington, DC, September 2-5, 2010

APSA and 2010 Program Chairs Lisa Martin (University of Wisconsin) and Andrea Campbell (MIT) encourage you to attend the 2010 APSA Annual Meeting in Washington DC. Plans for the conference are underway!

Martin and Campbell are organizing the conference on the theme "The Politics of Hard Times: Citizens, Nations, and the International System under Economic Stress." Periodically the world economy experiences "hard times," such as in the last quarter of the 19th century, the Great Depression, and the ups and downs of the 1970-1980s oil crises and inflations. It is commonly believed that during these periods, governments become more interventionist; populism, fascism, or communism develop and prosper; democracies are prone to give way to authoritarianism; international conflict increases; the international economic system is reconfigured; and international institutions fail or are refashioned. What does political science have to say about these claims?

Martin and Campbell and to which they hope to see this question and others on the theme addressed by a wide range of panels, encompassing diverse theoretical, practical, and methodological perspectives at the 2010 APSA Annual Meeting .
