

Scientific Concepts of Functional Foods in Europe: Consensus Document

Authors:

A.T. Diplock¹, P.J. Aggett², M. Ashwell³, F. Bornet⁴, E.B. Fern⁵, M.B. Roberfroid⁶

¹ International Antioxidant Research Centre, GKT Guy's Hospital, London, United Kingdom

² University of Central Lancashire, Lancashire Postgraduate School of Medicine and Health, Preston, Lancashire, United Kingdom

³ Ashwell Associates, Ashwell, Hertfordshire, United Kingdom

⁴ Eridania Béghin-Say, Vilvoorde Research & Development Centre, Nutrition & Health Service, Vilvoorde, Belgium

⁵ Nestec Ltd., Vevey, Switzerland

⁶ Université Catholique de Louvain, Ecole de Pharmacie, Brussels, Belgium

EC Concerted Action
Coordinated by ILSI, Europe

Editorial Policy for the British Journal of Nutrition Supplements

Supplements to the British Journal of Nutrition publish material which falls within the general remit of the Journal, namely the advancement of nutritional science in its broadest sense. Material to be published in Supplements will be subject to peer review, normally by one or more Supplement Editors appointed by the Editorial Board for each supplementary issue. The British Journal of Nutrition Editorial Board reserves the right not to accept for publication any material which in the opinion of the Supplement Editor(s) is of insufficient quality or scientific balance. Individual supplements may be sponsored by one or more bodies but sponsorship must not, in the judgement of the Supplement Editor(s), affect the scientific balance of the material presented.

Suggestions of material which may be suitable for publication as a supplement to the British Journal of Nutrition are welcomed; they should be directed to the Supplements Editor at the address given below:

Supplements Editor
British Journal of Nutrition
The Nutrition Society
10 Cambridge Court
210 Shepherds Bush Road
London W6 7NJ
UK

Telephone: +44 (0) 171 371 6225
Fax: +44 (0) 171 602 1756
Email: c.m.williams@reading.ac.uk