

Irish Historical Studies, xxxviii, no. 150 (November 2012)

Communications

I.H.S. vol. xxxviii no. 149 (May 2012) featured a review by Eamon Darcy of The experience of revolution in Stuart Britain and Ireland: essays for John Morrill (Cambridge, 2011) edited by Michael Braddick and David Smith. This review mistakenly referred to an essay by Declan Downey on events in Ireland. The essay, ‘Irish bishops, their biographers and the experience of revolution, 1656–1686’, was, in fact, written by Dr John McCafferty. Dr Downey did not contribute an essay to this collection. Irish Historical Studies wishes to apologise to Dr McCafferty and Dr Downey for this error and for any resulting confusion.