International Law Weekend

October 22-24, 2009

Association of the Bar of the City of New York on October 22, 2009, and at Fordham University School of Law on October 23rd and 24th

The Weekend's theme is "Challenges to Transnational Governance". The economic, political, and social changes of the last decade have re-shaped international law and deeply affected its role and practice, along with the identity and attitude of its participants. This year's Weekend will address the challenges posed by these changes with an emphasis on the emergence of the notion of "transnational governance" and the issues related to it, including:

Re-ordering, organizing, and monitoring: Is this what transnational governance is about?

Who is in charge of transnational governance?: A discussion of the (sometimes new) role of international organizations, states, NGOs, regions, companies, private individuals, and others.

Governing what?: The contents and scope of transnational governance

The impact of transnational governance on international trade, foreign investment, and dispute resolution mechanisms.
