THE CONTRIBUTORS

HANS SPEIER, Chief of the Social Science Division of The RAND Corporation, is on leave this year as a Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, Stanford, Calif. His published works include Social Order and the Risks of War: Papers in Political Sociology (1951).

DAVID S. LANDES, Associate Professor of Economics at Columbia University, is the author of Bankers and Pashas: A Study of International Finance and Economic Imperialism in the Egypt of the 1860's, to be published in England in 1957.

WALLACE C. PETERSON, Assistant Professor of Economics at the University of Nebraska, is engaged in a study of the redistribution of income in France through the workings of the social security system.

DAVID EASTON is Professor of Political Science at the University of Chicago and the author of The Political System (1953). His present article reflects ideas that are part of a larger work dealing with a possible theoretical orientation to the comparative analysis of political systems.

C. E. BLACK is Professor of History at Princeton University. He is co-author of Twentieth Century Europe: A History (1950) and European Political Systems (1953), and he recently edited Rewriting Russian History: Soviet Interpretations of Russia's Past (1956).

BERNARD BRODIE is a Senior Staff Member of The RAND Corporation. He is the author of A Guide to Naval Strategy (3rd ed., 1954) and co-author of The Absolute Weapon: Atomic Power and World Order (1946).

JOSEPH LAPALOMBARA is Associate Professor of Political Science and Research Associate in the Labor and Industrial Relations Center at Michigan State University. Among his publications is A Guide to Michigan Politics (1955).

OTTO KIRCHHEIMER joined the Graduate Faculty of the New School for Social Research in New York as Professor of Political Science in 1955. Prior to that, he spent ten years as an analyst and branch chief in the Department of State's Office of Intelligence Research.

S. N. EISENSTADT, head of the Department of Sociology at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, is the author of Absorption of Immigrants in Israel (1951) and From Generation to Generation: Age Groups and Social Structure (1956).

BENJAMIN HIGGINS is Professor of Economics (Visiting) and Director of the Indonesia Project in the Center for International Studies at M.I.T. He served as Monetary and Fiscal Adviser to the National Planning Bureau of Indonesia in 1952-1953 and during the previous ten years was Bronfman Professor of Economics at McGill University.
