

Development in the JAS: Building the Vision

This is the tenth volume of the JAS and it marks a significant stage in the work of this journal. We began this project in the context of conflict among Anglicans and the need to engage in serious and committed conversation on the Anglican tradition of beliefs and practices. In the Editorial of the first issue we said that 'The Journal of Anglican Studies sets out to provide for and to encourage that conversation among Anglican scholars around the world.' Furthermore,

An important aspect of this challenge arises for Anglicans from the enormous disparities between different parts of the world in terms of resources, not just physical resources but, for the purposes of this exercise, resources for scholarship and the development of theological disciplines. It will be important, therefore, for the Journal of Anglican Studies to encourage contributions that reflect the full range of contexts in which Anglican scholars work.

We have been very fortunate in being able to publish articles on a broad range of subjects from all points of view and locations in the first ten volumes. In order to further that vision we are very pleased to announce the appointment of a number of Regional Associate Editors around the world to represent the JAS and encourage authors from their region to contribute to the wider conversation on Anglicanism around the world. We are very grateful to these people, who are distinguished scholars in their own right, for being willing to join in the JAS project. The appointments we have now made are:

EUROPE

Dr Stephen Platten, Bishop of Wakefield in the Church of England

NORTH AMERICA

Dr Darren Marks, Huron University College, The University of Western Ontario, Canada

SOUTHERN AFRICA

The Revd Canon Janet Elizabeth Trisk, South Africa

WEST AFRICA

Dr Michael Fape, Bishop of Remo, Nigeria

We also have already working with us as a Regional Associate Editor for

ASIA

Dr Michael Poon, Centre for the Study of Christianity in Asia, Trinity Theological College, Singapore

The Editorial Team also includes:

Special Themed Issues, Dr Stephen Pickard, Canberra, Australia
Research Review Articles, Dr James Rigney, Newcastle, Australia
Development, Dr Beth Heyde, Canberra, Australia
Managing Editor, Dr Mark Harding, Dean, Australian College of Theology
Review Editor, Professor Mark Chapman, Oxford, England
Editor, Dr Bruce Kaye, Watsons Bay, NSW, Australia