

Corrigenda

Morgan, J. F., Lacey, J. H. & Sedgwick, P. M., BJP, 174, 135–140. The final “Limitation” of the study (p. 140) should read: “Subjects uncertain about gestational diabetes were coded negative, which may underestimate its prevalence”.

UK 700 Group, BJP, 174, 74–78. The authors wish to add the following note: the UK700 Group is a collaborative study team involving four clinical centres – Manchester (Tom Butler, Francis Creed, Janella Fraser, Richard Gater, Peter Huxley, Nick Tarrrier, Theresa Tattan), King’s/ Maudsley, London (Tom Fahy, Catherine Gilvarry, Kwame McKenzie, Robin Murray, Jim van Os, Elizabeth Walsh), St Mary’s/St Charles’, London (John Green, Anna Higgitt, Elizabeth van Horn, Donal Leddy, Patricia Thornton, Peter Tyrer), St

George’s, London (Rob Bale, Tom Burns, Matthew Fiander, Kate Harvey, Andy Kent, Chiara Samele), York (Health Economics Centre: Sarah Byford, David Torgerson), London (Statistical Centre: Simon Thompson, Ian White). The UK700 trial was funded by grants from the UK Department of Health and National Health Service Research and Development programme.