
CONTRIBUTORS

Pettit Philip is Professor of Social and Political Theory at the Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University and a regular Visiting Professor of Philosophy at Columbia University. He is author of a number of books, including Republicanism: A Theory of Freedom and Government (Oxford University Press, 1997), Three Methods of Ethics (Routledge, 1997, with M. Baron and M. Slote) and The Common Mind: An Essay on Psychology, Society and Politics (Oxford University Press, 1993). He also has a new book in press A Theory of Freedom: From Psychology to Politics (Polity Press, 2001).

Anderson Elizabeth is Professor of Philosophy and Women's Studies and Adjunct Professor of Law at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She is the author of Value in Ethics and Economics and numerous articles about value theory, equality, democratic theory, rational choice, and feminist epistemology.

Scanlon T. M. is Alford Professor of Natural Religion, Moral Philosophy, and Civil Polity at Harvard University.

Sen Amartya is Master of Trinity College, Cambridge and Lamont University Professor Emeritus at Harvard University. He is a past president of the Econometric Society, the International Economic Association, the Indian Economic Association, and the American Economic Association. His publications include Collective Choice and Social Welfare (1970), Choice, Welfare and Measurement (1982), Inequality Reexamined (1992), and Development as Freedom (1999).

Nussbaum Martha is Ernst Freund Distinguished Service Professor of Law and Ethics at the University of Chicago, with appointments in the Philosophy Department, Law School, Divinity School and the Center for Gender Studies. Her most recent book is Women And Human Development: The Capabilities Approach (Cambridge University Press, 2000).

Tebble Adam James is a research student in the Government Department of the London School of Economics and Political Science and is currently completing a thesis on the neo-Hayekian response to the challenge of cultural pluralism. His other research interests include the theory of the market, discursive and deliberative accounts of politics, and the significance of sexuality to political theory.

Gilbert Margaret is Professor of Philosophy at the University of Connecticut, Storrs. Her publications include the books, On Social Facts (1989), Living Together:

CONTRIBUTORS

Rationality, Sociality, and Obligation (1996), and Sociality and Responsibility: New Essays in Plural Subject Theory (2000). She has taught at many universities including Princeton and Oxford, and lectures frequently to philosophical and interdisciplinary audiences in Europe and the United States.

Lowry S. Todd, Professor of Economics Emeritus, Washington and Lee University, was book review editor of History of Political Economy 1974–96. His primary publication was The Archeology of Economic Ideas: the Classical Greek Tradition (1987). His most recent publication was a collection co-edited with Barry Gordon, Ancient and Medieval Economic Ideas and Concepts of Social Justice (1998).

Verbeek Bruno is postdoctoral fellow in the Social & Political Theory Program, Research School for the Social Sciences, Australian National University.

Dufwenberg Martin is Associate Professor in Economics at Stockholm University. His research uses non-cooperative game theory and experimental methods to examine strategic interaction.

Goodin Robert is Professor of Social & Political Theory and Philosophy, Research School of Social Science, Australian National University. He is co-author of two recent books on the welfare state, Social Welfare & Individual Responsibility (with David Schmidtz) and The Real Worlds of Welfare Capitalism (with Bruce Headey, Ruud Muffels and Henk-Jan Dirven), both published by Cambridge University Press.