A MODERN EUROPEAN COMPANY LAW SYSTEM

Commentary on the 1976 Dutch Legislation

by J.M.M. Maeijer, Professor of Commercial Law, University of Nijmegen, The Netherlands.

1978, 410 pp., cloth, Dfl. 125.00/$ 62.50

ISBN 90 286 0128 7

As a member of the EEC, The Netherlands has been one of the first countries to attempt to adapt its legislation to the so-called EEC-guidelines for the harmonization of company law. Because of its thorough discussion of the considerable difference in terminology and procedure between the company law of Holland and that of the English-speaking countries, this book will be of interest not only to those legal practitioners coming in contact with Dutch company law, but also to economists and corporate officials whose companies operate in The Netherlands or are planning to set up such an operation.

The following topics are discussed in detail:

1. Formation of the Company,
2. Protection of Share Capital,
3. Shares,
4. Position of the Shareholder,
5. Position of the Board of Managers,
6. Position of the Supervisory Directors,
7. Oligarchy,
8. Liability to Third Parties,
9. Annual Accounts,
10. Invalidity of Resolutions,
11. Position of the Employees,
12. Right of Investigation,
13. Amendment of the Company's Statute and Liquidation,
14. Merger Rules,
15. The Closed Company: B.V.,
16. The Large N.V. and B.V.

As Annexes, the book contains the Resolutions of the Social and Economic Council on Rules relating to Public Offers and Mergers, and precedents of companies' statutes.
