

Figures

- 4.1 Felix Mendelssohn (1809–47), Ein Blick auf die Hebriden und Morven (A View of the Hebrides and Morven), graphite, pen, and ink on paper, Tobermory, 7 August 1829 (Bodleian Library, University of Oxford, MS. M. Deneke Mendelssohn D.2, Fol. 28) [page 57]
- 4.2 Adolph Menzel (1815–1905), Clara Schumann and Joseph Joachim in Concert (1854), coloured chalks, 27 × 33 cm, Private Collection (Wikimedia Commons) [64]
- 4.3 Adolph Menzel, Bilse Concert (1871), gouache, 17.8 × 12 cm, Kupferstichkabinett, Berlin (bpk Bildagentur / Kupferstichkabinett, Staatliche Museen, Berlin / Jörg P. Anders / Art Resource, NY) [65]
- 4.4 Adolph Menzel, Flute Concert of Frederick the Great at Sanssouci (1850–2), oil on canvas, 142 × 205 cm, Alte Nationalgalerie, Berlin (Wikimedia Commons) [66]
- 8.1 Moritz von Schwind (1804–71), Der Erbkönig (c. 1830). Oil on canvas, 32 × 44.5 cm, Österreichische Galerie Belvedere, Vienna (Wikimedia Commons) [128]
- 8.2 La danse du sabbat, an infernal bacchanale. Metal engraving, in Paul Christian, Histoire de la magie (Paris: Furne, 1884) (<http://fantastic.library.cornell.edu/imagerecord.php?record=68>) [141]
- 9.1 Caspar David Friedrich (1774–1840), Winterlandschaft mit Kirche (Dortmund version) (1811). Oil on canvas, 33 × 45 cm, Museum für Kunst und Kulturgeschichte, Dortmund (Wikimedia Commons) [153]
- 9.2 Caspar David Friedrich, Fichtendickicht im Schnee (c. 1828). Oil on canvas, 31.3 × 25.4 cm, Neue Pinakothek, Munich (Wikimedia Commons) [154]