Migrant Labour in Kenya. Capitalism and African Response 1895–1975

S Stichter

This study of labour history in Kenya, from colonial times through the depression to independence and beyond, shows how the demands of the capitalist world market transformed the economies of African societies in Kenya. It describes how Africans responded creatively to these new constraints and opportunities and examines the growth and subsequent modification of the migrant labour economy.

Trade and Politics in a Shona Kingdom

H H K Bhila

This book traces the development of the small but wealthy Shona Kingdom of Manyika. Throughout the author's examination of Manyika institutions, from the early modern period until the end of the nineteenth century, trade is the central theme. Dr Bhila describes how the Manyika thrived through the manipulation of their trade and how, unable to withstand the subsequent dislocation in trading patterns, they were eventually absorbed by the colonial powers.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, Vol. XV, pp. 173-4. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints. Additional offprints may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the page proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1.
