

West Africa's First Coup: Neo-Colonial and Pan-African Projects in Togo's "Shadow Archives" – ADDENDUM

Kate Skinner

<https://doi.org/10.1017/asr.2019.39>, published by Cambridge University Press, 20 August 2019

Keywords: Ghana; Togo; France; United States; assassination; coup; diplomatic relations; neo-colonialism; pan-Africanism; archives; addendum

The African Studies Review would like to issue a clarification regarding this article (Skinner 2020). The events in Togo on 13 January 1963 were the first coup during the period in which the majority of West African states had become independent from European colonial rule. Other examples of events in which political leaders were deposed or overthrown can of course be identified in earlier periods of West African history, and scholars have also described these events as coups.

Reference

Skinner, Kate. 2020. "West Africa's First Coup: Neo-Colonial and Pan-African Projects in Togo's 'Shadow Archives.'" African Studies Review 63 (2): 375–398.

African Studies Review, Volume 64, Number 3 (September 2021), pp. 737

© African Studies Association, 2021
doi:10.1017/asr.2021.29