

Graduate Students Attend Meeting with APSA Assistance

In an effort to assist graduate students wishing to participate in the Annual Meeting, the Association awarded 40 Advanced Student Travel Grants for the 2002 meeting in Boston. The APSA has awarded nearly 300 travel grants since the program began in 1994. The names and affiliations of the 2002 winners follow.

Todd Allee, University of Michigan
Merih Anil, CUNY - Graduate Center
Richard G. Avramenko, Georgetown University
Tamer Balci, Claremont Grad School
Katharine D. Bedford, Rutgers University
Sarah Bell, Monterey Institute
Michael J. Bosia, Northwestern University
Teresa Burns, Claremont Graduate University
Josh Busby, Georgetown University
Richard Carney, University of California, San Diego
Jamie L. Carson, Michigan State University
Erin Aeran Chung, Northwestern University
Erik Engstrom, University of California, San Diego
Rosalind Fielder, University of Vermont
Charles J. Finocchiaro, Michigan State University
Jason Gainous, University of Florida
Sara Margaret Gubala, University of South Carolina
Heather D. Heckel, Georgia State University
William Hurst, University of California, Berkeley
Rebecca J. Johnson, Georgetown University
James Alan Kendrick, University of Virginia/Duke University
Mary Lou Killian, Temple University
Stephen Kirk, University of Chicago
Chad Lavin, Penn State University
Adam B. Lawrence, University of Pittsburgh
Timothy Lehmann, Ohio State University
Mary Fran Malone, University of Pittsburgh
Paul Manna, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Seth Masket, UCLA
Andrea McAtee, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Suzanne J. Piotrowski, American University
Colin Provost, SUNY - Stony Brook
Kirk A. Randazzo, Michigan State University
Jacob R. Straus, University of Florida
Joanne E. Tetlow, Catholic University
Heather Turcotte, San Francisco State University
Ben Webster, Georgetown University
John E. Whitehead, University Southern California

International Scholar Travel Grants

Forty-nine senior and graduate student international scholars benefitted from the APSA's international travel grant program this year. Thirty-four grants to scholars representing sixteen countries were awarded for travel expenses or lodging in Boston. All award winners were involved in the 2002 Annual Meeting program. In the grant program's eight years of existence, 200 international scholars have benefitted.

Sixteen international advanced graduate students were awarded travel grants to help defray their costs to attend the 2002 meeting. All awardees presented papers or posters at the meeting and all were advanced graduate students who had begun work on their dissertations.

International Advanced Graduate Students

Siddhartha Baviskar, University of Pittsburgh
Merike Blofield, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Theresa Capelos, SUNY - Stony Brook
C.C. Eric Chang, UCLA
Coleman Katharina, Princeton University
Claudio A. Fuentes, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Majusha Gupte, Purdue University
Wonik Kim, New York University
So Young Kim, Northwestern University
Hyeok Yong Kwon, Cornell University
Margitta Maetzke, Northwestern University
Nikolay V. Marinov, Stanford University
Kamal Sadiq, University of Chicago
Yasar Sari, University of Virginia
Jungmin Seo, University of Chicago
Muserref Yetim, University of Texas, Austin

International Senior Scholars

Ugo M. Amoretti, University of Genoa, Italy
Ersel Aydinli, Bilkent University, Turkey
Pinar Bilgin, Bilkent University, Turkey
Sean Carey, University of Essex, UK
Sabine Carey, University of Essex, UK
Laura Castiglioni, University of Milan, Italy
Ayse Betul Celik, Sabanci University, Turkey
Jungug Choi, Lund University, Sweden
Maura Conway, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland
Devon Curtis, London School of Economics, UK
Anne Claude, University of Kent, Darwin College, UK
Paolo Dardanelli, London School of Economics, UK

Torun Dewan, London School of Economics, UK
Carolin Emcke, Der Spiegel, Germany
Mila Gasco, International Institute on Governance, Spain
Kikue Hamayotsu, Australian National University, Australia
Yusaku Horiuchi, National University of Singapore, Singapore
Emmanuel Jailly- Brunet, University of Victoria, Canada
Yuri Josanu, International Institute of Management, Moldova
Hae-Won Jun, University of Oxford, UK
Rami Khouri, journalist, Jordan
Valentino Larcinese, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK
Patti Tamorn Lenard, Oxford University, UK
Lahoud Nelly, Australian National University, Australia
Brendon O'Connor, Flinders University, Australia
Sarah Oates, University of Glasgow, Scotland
Babak Rahimi, European University Institute, Italy
Sushila Ramaswamy, Jesus and Mary College, India
Clemens Spieb, University of Heidelberg, Germany
Federico Sturzenegger, University Torcuato Di Tella, Argentina
Lesley Terris, Tel Aviv University, Israel
Jose Juan Torreiro, University of Paris, France
Sonja Zmerli, Mannheimer Zentrum, Germany

Japanese Political Science Association

Kentaro Fukumoto, Gakushuin University
Masaru Kohno, Aoyama Gakuin University
Naoko Onizuka, Teikyo University

Political Studies Association (British)

Justin Fisher, Brunel University
Jonathan Hopkin, European Research Institute
Ingrid Vanbiezen, University of Birmingham