

Contributors to this Issue

Contributors of Articles

STEFANIE DOEBLER is a research fellow in the school of Geography, Archaeology and Palaeoecology at Queen's University Belfast, UK. Her research interests include religion, attitudes and social exclusion in national and cross-national comparison using survey and Census data.

PAUL HEDGES is Associate Professor in Interreligious Studies at the Studies in Interreligious Relations in Plural Societies Programme, RSIS, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. He has previously worked for, or lectured at, other universities in Asia, Europe, and North America. He researches, teaches, and publishes widely in such areas as Interreligious Studies, theory and method in the study of religion, contemporary global religious ideologies, and interreligious hermeneutics. Recent books include Contemporary Muslim-Christian Encounters (Bloomsbury, 2015), Controversies in Contemporary Religion (3 volumes, Praeger, 2014), and Controversies in Interreligious Dialogue and the Theology of Religions (SCM, 2010).

RAMAZAN KILIÇ is an Assistant Professor of Political Science and director of Islamic Studies program at University of Nebraska at Omaha. His recent work was published in Comparative Politics and Political Science Quarterly.

ERLA LEIFSDÓTTIR Lindberg studied political science at the Department of Political Science of the University of Aarhus. She currently lives and works in Spain.

ERIC C. MILLER is Assistant Professor of Communication Studies at Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania, where he researches Christian political rhetoric in the United States.

MARK SETZLER is an Associate Professor of Political Science at High Point University, High Point, North Carolina. His recent research has focused on the influence of religiosity on attitudes and behavior towards female politicians in the United States, Canada, and Latin America. He has forthcoming publications on this topic in Politics & Gender and Social Science Quarterly.

ERIC M. USLANER is Professor of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland–College Park. He is the author of nine books, the editor of the Oxford Handbook of Social and Political Trust, and has served as a Fulbright Professor at the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, Israel; Novosibirsk State Technical University, Novosibirsk, Russia; and Australian National University, Canberra, Australia.

KEES VAN KERSBERGEN is Professor of Comparative Politics at the Department of Political Science of the University of Aarhus. His main interests lie in religion and politics, comparative politics, comparative political economy, and comparative political sociology. He has published widely on these topics in major journals. He is the author of Social Capitalism: A Study of Christian Democracy and the Welfare State and co-editor (with Philip Manow) of Religion, Class Coalitions and Welfare State Regimes.

CAROLYN M. WARNER is Professor of Political Science and a faculty affiliate with the Center for the Study of Religion and Conflict at Arizona State University. She is principle investigator on an National Science Foundation–funded project on religion and asymmetric conflict. She has recently published articles in Comparative Politics and Psychological Science, and, with Ramazan Kılınc, Christopher W. Hale, and Adam B. Cohen, she has a book under contract with Cambridge University Press.

JANELLE WONG is the Director of the Asian American Studies Program and Professor of American Studies at the University of Maryland, College Park. She holds a Ph.D. in Political Science from Yale University. She is the author of Democracy's Promise: Immigrants and American Civic Institutions and a co-principal investigator on the 2016 National Asian American Survey.

ALIXANDRA B. YANUS is Assistant Professor of Political Science at High Point University in High Point, North Carolina. Her primary research agenda focuses on the role of gender stereotypes in American politics.

Contributors of Book Reviews

GEORGE CROWDER is Professor of Political Theory in the School of Social and Political Studies, Flinders University, Adelaide, Australia. His books include Liberalism and Value Pluralism (2002), Isaiah Berlin: Liberty and Pluralism (2004), The One and the Many: Reading Isaiah Berlin (co-edited with Henry Hardy, 2007), and Theories of Multiculturalism (2013).

NETANEL FISHER is an adjunct lecturer at the Department of Sociology, Political Science and Communications, The Open University of Israel. Among his publications: The Challenge of Conversion to Judaism in Israel (2015), published by The Israel Democracy Institute in Jerusalem (Hebrew).

MATTHEW KRAUS is an assistant professor in the Department of Judaic Studies at the University of Cincinnati. His expertise is in the history of biblical interpretation.

CHRISTOPHER L. WEAVER is a Ph.D. Candidate in the Department of Political Science at the University of Notre Dame. His research examines a range of topics within political behavior and public opinion, including religion, moral psychology, and identity politics. His work has appeared in Politics and Religion and Law & Society Review.

Contributors to Featured Review Exchange

WALTER FEINBERG is the C. D. Hardie Emeritus Professor of philosophy of education Emeritus at the University of Illinois, Urbana. His latest book, What is A Public Education: A Philosophical Inquiry into Self Development, Cultural Commitment and Public Engagement, is forthcoming by Lexington Books in its Philosophy and Cultural Identity series.

LISA L. STENMARK is a Lecturer in Comparative Religious Studies in the College of Humanities and Arts at San Jose State University. She earned her Ph.D. in Religious Studies from Vanderbilt University.