Using video recordings of actual therapy sessions, Laurie demonstrates how to dramatically reduce clients' emotional distress and reactivity. What you will observe will challenge some of your basic premises about how, and how quickly, people can change.

the Cognitive Behaviour Therapist

Published for the British Association for Behavioural and Cognitive Psychotherapies (BABCP)

Editor-in-Chief

Michael Townend, University of Derby, UK

tCBT is an interdisciplinary, peer-reviewed journal aimed primarily at practitioners of cognitive behaviour therapy in the helping and teaching professions. It features papers covering clinical and professional issues, which contribute to the theory, practice and evolution of the cognitive and behavioural therapies. The journal publishes papers that describe new developments, are practice-focused, detail clinical interventions, research reports, case reports, practice audits, and reviews of clinical scales. The journal also publishes papers that have an education, training or supervision focus, or reviews of recently published literature.

Children Australia

Published for The Australian Association of Special Education Inc.

Editor

Jennifer Lehmann, Jennifer Lehmann

Children Australia links policy, research and practice issues on matters associated with children, young people and family wellbeing. It challenges some of the traditional ideas, practices and 'silos' associated with professional disciplines, roles and activities. The journal provides an opportunity for professional staff, academics and others concerned with children, youth and families, to report on a wide range of topics that address Australian and international ideas and developments. It is highly relevant to a wide readership, including academics, administrators, teachers, students and all professionals working in human services fields. Debate and discussion is encouraged as a means to explore and develop the myriad practices contributing to the well-being for children, young people and their families.

INSTRUCTIONS TO AUTHORS

These guidelines follow the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed., 2010). They do not cover all details. If you are uncertain about any aspect of presentation consult the APA manual.

Manuscript Submissions

Manuscripts should be submitted to:

Glenn Lerner

E-mail: glerner@aapt.net.au

Manuscript Preparation

Manuscripts must be presented double spaced in a clear, and readable typeface on A4 page size. Number all pages except the figures beginning with the first page. Your submission should have a separate title page bearing the name(s) and affiliation(s) of the contributing author(s) and an abstract of no more than 200 words typed on a separate page. An e-mail address and/or fax/phone numbers are required for contact purposes and should be included in the corresponding author's address on the title page.

Headings

Provide headings which subdivide the paper into its key areas. Reports of empirical studies will generally follow a sequence of headings including introduction, method, results and discussion. Review, theoretical, case study and other papers need not follow such a format but should provide a logical structure and appropriate section headings.

Style

The written paper should be logical, economical and precise in structure and language. Authors should take special care to edit their papers so it is clearly expressed, easily understood by readers, grammatically correct and devoid of repetition.

Content

Papers should focus on the theory, research, teaching and practice of family therapy, with case studies and interviews presented as part of a more general theoretical or practice discussion.

Language and Cultural Identity

Where it is important to describe the cultural identity or a person, family or group of people in a paper, authors are advised to seek advice from the person, family or representatives of the group about appropriate language so they are represented in a respectful manner that is in line with their preferences. Capitals should be used when referring to Aboriginal peoples, Torres Strait Islander peoples, Maori peoples, Indigenous peoples, or a specific community, cultural group, nation name or tribal affiliation. The critical expectation is that authors gain advice before submitting papers, and understand that the editorial team may want to clarify language with them to ensure that respectful processes have been followed.

Tables

Reserve tables for important data directly related to the content of the paper. A well-constructed table should enable data to be isolated from the text and presented in a way that enables the reader to quickly see patterns and relationships of the data not readily discernible in the text. Use brief but explanatory table titles. The table title is placed at the top of the table. Include each table on a separate sheet. When constructing tables use tabs to space your columns as this will make it much easier to typeset the table in the text.

Figures, illustrations and photographs

Figures should be prepared to the correct size (max. width up to 132 mm) and each one supplied as a PDF, separate to the manuscript Word file. Include placement instructions in the Word document, such as 'Insert Figure 1 here'. The figure title is placed at the bottom of the figure. Prior to sending artwork, the separate files of figures, graphs, illustrations, should be printed by the author to test that the fonts have been embedded correctly and there is no distortion in the artwork (e.g., lines and fonts reproduce cleanly with no jagged lines or fuzzy edges), as any such faults cannot be corrected by the publisher.

Referencing

References and citations should follow the APA format and this should be carefully checked before submission. It is the author's responsibility to check that references in the paper are correctly given in the reference list.

Citations in Text

Quotations should be presented as follows: 'The possibilities for therapy are endless' (author, 2011, p. 11).

For a single author: In a recent review, Smith (1992) suggested that ... A recent review (Smith, 1992) suggested that ... In 1992, Smith suggested that ... For two authors: In a recent review, Smith and Watson (1992) suggested that ... A recent review (Smith & Watson, 1992) suggested that ... In 1992, Smith and Watson suggested that ... When a work has three, four, or five authors: Cite all authors the first time the reference occurs; thereafter, the name of the first author followed by et al. (e.g., Smith et al., 1991). The full list of authors must be cited in the list of references at the end of the paper. If use of the 'et al.' format gives rise to confusion, with another work of the same year and with the same first author, the references should be differentiated by the use of alphabet sequence following the publication year (e.g., Smith et al., 1991a; Smith et al., 1991b). When a work has six or more authors: Cite only the surname of the first author, followed by et al.; in the reference list, provide initials and surnames of the first six and seven authors but use an ellipsis between sixth and final author when there are more than seven. General: Within a paragraph the year need not be repeated in subsequent citations of the same study provided the study cannot be confused with other studies cited in the paper. When citing several studies within the same set of parentheses, the following format should be adhered to '... several studies (Brooks, 1974a, 1974b; Cairns et al., 1992; Miller, in press; Smith, 1992; Tarter et al., 1985, 1987; Watson & Smith, 1990) have reported that ...'. Quotations should be presented as follows: 'The possibilities for therapy are endless' (author, 2011, p. 11).
