NEW IN SOUTHEAST ASIAN STUDIES

The Power of Everyday Politics

How Vietnamese Peasants Transformed National Policy

Benedict J. Tria Kerkvliet

“Kerkvliet again enlarges our understanding of subaltern agency and politics. This splendid volume is a great tribute to the capacity of Vietnamese villagers to doggedly defend their basic interests and restrict the options of elites. The Power of Everyday Politics is... an essential contribution to Southeast Asian studies and to our understanding of socialist bloc agriculture and of the ‘other’ struggle of the Vietnamese people.”

—James C. Scott, Yale University

A Not-So-Distant Horror

Mass Violence in East Timor

Joseph Nevins

“The struggle of the people of East Timor for survival, against incredible odds, is a truly inspiring achievement, one of the most astonishing of recent history. This remarkable book combines depth of knowledge and compassionate understanding, with intimate familiarity from the ground to the historical-documentary record, and the broader geopolitical and cultural-moral context.”
