Contributors to This Issue

Our bicentennial issue grows out of a conference held at Notre Dame and St. Mary's College, March 7-11, under the title AN ALMOST CHOSEN PEOPLE: THE MORAL ASPIRATIONS OF AMERICANS. The essays in this issue, plus overview essays by Notre Dame Professors Walter Niegorski and Ronald Weber, will be published in book form by the University of Notre Dame Press in the fall.

MARSHALL SMELSER is Professor of History at Notre Dame. MARTIN DIAMOND has returned to his home base at Northern Illinois University after a year's fellowship at the National Humanities Institute at Yale. Yale Professor SYDNEY E. AHLSTROM is the author of A Religious History of the American People. ALFRED KAZIN's most recent book of many about American literature and culture is Bright Book of Life. I. BERNARD COHEN, who is Professor of the History of Science at Harvard, plans a book incorporating his essay entitled Science and the American Republic. PETER L. BERGER, who teaches Sociology at Rutgers, is also Associate Editor of Worldview. VINCENT HARDING, who has just completed a stint at the University of Pennsylvania, is Chairman of the Institute of the Black World in Atlanta. THEODORE M. HESBURGH, of the Congregation of Holy Cross, has been President of Notre Dame since 1952.

BROTHER BERNARD DONAHOE, of the Congregation of Holy Cross, teaches American History at St. Mary's College, Notre Dame. THOMAS J. SCHLERETH teaches in the Notre Dame Program in American Studies. JOHN LYON is chairman of the General Program of Liberal Studies at Notre Dame. FAUZI M. NAJJAR is Professor of Political Science at Michigan State. STANLEY HAUERWAS is Professor of Theology at Notre Dame. EDWARD FISCHER's most recent book, Light in the Far East, will be published in the fall. DONALD N. BARRETT teaches Sociology at Notre Dame. ALFRED M. DE ZAYAS is a member of the faculty of the Institut für Völkerrecht of the University of Göttingen. KEN WOLF, a Professor at Murray (Ky.) State University, is teaching this summer in Austria. Stephen T. Worland teaches Economics at Notre Dame.

THE REVIEW OF POLITICS, without neglecting the analysis of institutions and techniques, is primarily interested in the philosophical and historical approach to political realities.
