

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

LUCY F. ACKERT is professor of finance in the Coles College of Business at Kennesaw State University. She holds a Ph.D. from Emory University and her research interests include individuals' use of information and financial market reaction to information. In 1993, Dr. Ackert received a Smith Breeden Prize for Distinguished Paper in the Journal of Finance. She has published in a variety of journals and recently co-authored a book in the area of behavioral finance. E-mail: lackert@kennesaw.edu.

BRUCE J. AVOLIO received his Ph.D. from the University of Akron. He is the Marion B. Ingersoll Professor and Director, Center for Leadership & Strategic Thinking in the Foster School of Business, University of Washington. His current research focuses on examining how to accelerate authentic leadership development and its impact on individual, group and organizational performance. E-mail: bavalio@uwashington.edu.

ADAM D. BAILEY is an assistant professor in the Department of Business at Black Hills State University. He received his Ph.D. in business administration from Texas Tech University in 2009. His work has been accepted for publication in the American Journal of Jurisprudence, Business Ethics Quarterly, and Philosophia. E-mail: adam.bailey@bhsu.edu.

DOROTHEA BAUR is a senior research fellow at the Institute for Business Ethics at the University of St. Gallen (Switzerland). She graduated in international relations at the University of St. Gallen (Switzerland), where she also earned her Ph.D. in political science (2009). Her research interests are in corporate social responsibility, political theory, and non-governmental organisations. Homepage: <http://www.iwe.unisg.ch/Ueber+uns/Team/Baur.aspx>; e-mail: dorothea.baur@unisg.ch.

JOHN R. BOATRIGHT is the Raymond C. Baumhart, S.J., Professor of Business Ethics in the Graduate School of Business at Loyola University Chicago. He served five years as the executive director of the Society for Business Ethics, and is a past president of the Society. He is the author of the books Ethics and the Conduct of Business and Ethics in Finance. He received his Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Chicago. E-mail: jboatr@luc.edu.

BRYAN K. CHURCH is professor of accounting in the College of Management at Georgia Institute of Technology. He received his Ph.D. in 1986 from the University of Florida. Professor Church conducts laboratory research on the production, use, and dissemination of information. He studies decision making in individual and market settings, across a wide variety of contexts. E-mail: bryan.church@mgt.gatech.edu.

JUAN M. ELEGIDO is professor of business ethics at the Lagos Business School (Pan-African University). He holds a licenciante degree in law (Madrid, Complutense) and a doctorate in law (Navarra). He is the author of four books on jurisprudence and business ethics. His work has been published in the Journal of Business Eth- ics, African Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of African Law, The British Tax Review, and Persona y Derecho, among others. He has been dean of the Lagos Business School and is currently vice-chancellor of Pan-African University. E-mail: jelegido@pau.edu.ng.

SEAN T. HANNAH received his Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. He is a U.S. Army Colonel and the director of the Center for the Army Profession and Ethic at West Point, the United States Military Academy. His research interests include leadership development, moral development, and leader courage, efficacy, and self-identity. E-mail: Sean.hannah@usma.edu.

M. G. HAYES is Fellow and Director of Studies in Economics at Robinson College, Cambridge. He is an economist with research interests in Keynes and in Fair Trade, with which he was formerly involved as a practitioner for fifteen years until 2002, and also had a previous career as an investment banker. His primary research is on and related to Keynes's General Theory, and he is secretary of the Post-Keynesian Economics Study Group (PKSG), www.postkeynesian.net. His major book is The Economics of Keynes: A New Guide to The General Theory (Edward Elgar, 2006). E-mail: mgh37@cam.ac.uk.

ROBERT W. KOLB is professor of finance at Loyola University Chicago, where he holds the Considine Chair of Applied Ethics. Kolb received two Ph.D.s from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (philosophy 1974, finance 1978). He served as the general editor of the five-volume Encyclopedia of Business Ethics and Society (Sage Publications, 2008), and recently published The Financial Crisis of Our Time (Oxford University Press, 2011). He edited three recent volumes: Lessons from the Financial Crisis: Causes, Consequences, and Our Economic Future; Sovereign Debt: From Safety to Default; and Financial Contagion: The Viral Threat to the Wealth of Nations (all published by John Wiley, 2010, 2011, 2011, respectively). His current project is Too Much Is Not Enough: Incentives in Executive Compensation (forthcoming from Oxford University Press, 2012). E-mail: BobKolb@mac.com.

XI (JASON) KUANG is an associate professor of accounting in the College of Management at Georgia Institute of Technology. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh in 2005. Professor Kuang conducts experimental research to investigate the effects of economic and psychological factors on decision making in accounting and related business settings. E-mail: jason.kuang@mgt.gatech.edu.

JEFFREY MORIARTY is an associate professor of philosophy at Bentley University. His research interests lie in business ethics and political philosophy, and at the intersection of these fields. Current research topics include questions of just distribution in state and organizational contexts. His articles are published or forthcoming in journals such as Business and Society, Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Business Ethics, Noûs, Pacific Philosophical Quarterly, and Philosophical Studies. E-mail: jmoriarty@bentley.edu.

GUIDO PALAZZO is professor of business ethics at the University of Lausanne (Switzerland). He graduated in business administration at the University of Bamberg (Germany), and earned his Ph.D. in political philosophy (1999) from the University of Marburg (Germany). His research interests are in corporate social responsibility, corporate branding, democratic theory, and organizational ethics. He is associate editor of Business Ethics Quarterly and European Management Review, and is a member of the editorial board of Academy of Management Review, Journal of Management Studies, and Business & Society. His work has appeared in journals such as Academy of Management Review, Business Ethics Quarterly, and Journal of Business Ethics. Homepage: <http://www.hec.unil.ch/people/gpalazzo>; e-mail: guido.palazzo@unil.ch.

LI QI is assistant professor of economics at Agnes Scott College. She received her Ph.D. in 2004 from the University of Pittsburgh. Professor Qi conducts research on experimental and behavioral economics and finance. Most of her recent work focuses on asset pricing, information transference, and portfolio compositions in financial markets. Her other research areas include China's economy and economic development. E-mail: lqi@agnesscott.edu.

ALAN STRUDLER is professor of legal studies and business ethics at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. He writes about truthfulness in business transactions, corporate responsibility, and normative ethical theory. He is also an associate editor at Business Ethics Quarterly. E-mail: strudler@wharton.upenn.edu.

FRED O. WALUMBWA received his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He is an associate professor of management in the Arizona State University's W. P. Carey School of Business. He is also a senior research advisor with the Gallup Organization, Washington, D.C. His research interests include leadership, organizational climate, culture and justice, business ethics, human resource strategy, and cross-cultural issues in management research. E-mail: Fred.Walumbwa@asu.edu.