Some observations on the nutritive value of a dehydrated meat bar. By JEAN I. SCOTT and E. J. ROLFE	x
Copper and zinc supplements for fattening pigs. By M. M. ALLEN, R. S. BARBER, R. BRAUDE and K. G. MITCHELL	xii
The use of chromium sesquioxide to determine 'instantaneous' digestibilities. By E. C. OWEN and R. PROUDFOOT	xiii
Further observations on the utilization of glucose and maltose in the young pig. By R. BRAUDE, A. M. DOLLAR, K. G. MITCHELL and J. W. G. PORTER	xiv
The utilization of raw and cooked starch by the young pig. By R. BRAUDE, A. M. DOLLAR, K. G. MITCHELL and J. W. G. PORTER	xv
The separation and the estimation of cerebrosides and gangliosides in brain: some results on the rat brain during growth from 15 to 120 days of age. By SHEILA PAYNE and B. S. PLATT	xvi
Observations on the blood of rats fed different levels of protein. By SHIRLEY A. BISSON and G. R. WADSWORTH	xvii
The distribution of tritium in the body of a young piglet after administration of ³ H-DL-lysine. By J. DONE and P. R. PAYNE	xviii
A simplified method for assay of tritium-labelled water in body fluids. By P. R. PAYNE and J. DONE	xix
Some biochemical, histological and clinical effects of malnutrition on the eyes of experimental animals. By D. S. McLAREN and K. BAGCHI	xix
Dietary intake and refractive errors: an experimental correlation. By P. A. GARDINER and I. MACDONALD	xx
Method for the drying of foodstuffs by heating in edible oils in vacuo. By B. S. PLATT C. R. C. HEARD and P. L. PELLETT	xxi

SYMPOSIUM PROCEEDINGS

One Hundred and Tenth Scientific Meeting

FLOUR AND BREAD		PAGE
Wheat and bread. A historical introduction. By HARRIETTE CHICK		1
The essentials of the flour-milling process. By C. R. JONES		7
Problems and pleasures of human experiments. By ELSIE M. WIDDOWSON		15
The report of the panel on flour. By R. A. MORTON		20
Nutritional aspects of high-extraction flour. By H. M. SINCLAIR		28
The case for fortified flour. By D. W. KENT-JONES		38
Analytical problems in the determination and control of extraction rates of flour. By J. R. NICHOLLS and J. R. FRASER		43

One Hundred and Eleventh Scientific Meeting

THE NUTRITION OF THE VERY YOUNG
Nutrition in the neonatal period. By C. A. SMITH		50
Some theoretical and practical difficulties in neonatal feeding. By F. E. HYTEN		57
The nutrition of young animals. By T. R. PRESTON		63
Idiopathic hypercalcaemia of infants. By R. G. MITCHELL		71
Hypercalcaemia in infants and young animals. By A. M. MACDONALD		74

One Hundred and Twelfth Scientific Meeting

THE NUTRITIVE VALUE OF PROTEINS
The nutritive value of proteins: general considerations. By KATHLEEN M. HENRY and S. K. KON		78
Biological methods of evaluating protein quality. By A. E. BENDER		85
Chemical methods of evaluating protein quality. By K. J. CARPENTER		91
The importance of protein quality in animal feeding. By GABRIELLE M. ELLINGER		100
The quantity and quality of protein for human nutrition. By B. S. PLATT and D. S. MILLER		106
Nitrogen balance after injuries. By J. P. BULL		114

ABSTRACTS OF COMMUNICATIONS

One Hundred and Thirteenth Scientific Meeting

The net protein utilization (N.P.U.) of some human diets. By D. S. MILLER and I. S. DEMA		i
Biochemical evidences of protein malnutrition. By B. S. PLATT and C. R. C. HEARD		ii
The amounts and distribution of the nitrogenous components of the breast milk of British, Indian and African mothers, with special reference to the curd:whey protein ratio. By PHYLLIS LUTZ and B. S. PLATT		iii
Environment and nutrition of the Papuan child. By H. A. P. C. OOMEN		iv
Arrested growth lines in the bones of pigs on low-protein diets. By R. J. C. STEWART and B. S. PLATT		v
The influence of the dietary fat on the kidneys of rats deficient in vitamin E. By T. MOORE, I. M. SHARMAN and K. R. SYMONDS		vi
An improved diet for the assay of vitamin B ₁₂ with rats. By KATHLEEN M. HENRY and J. W. G. PORTER		vii
The incidence of xerophthalmia in relation to age and sex in Java. By H. A. P. C. OOMEN		viii
Postoperative nutritional failure presenting the kwashiorkor syndrome. By Z. A. LEITNER		ix
'Available lysine' in wheat, flour and bread. By K. MARY CLEGG and NANSI DAVIES		x
