Teaching Civic Engagement: From Student to Active Citizen

Teaching Civic Engagement provides an exploration of key theoretical discussions, innovative ideas, and best practices in educating citizens in the 21st century. The book addresses theoretical debates over the place of civic engagement education in Political Science. It offers pedagogical examples in several subfields, including evidence of their effectiveness and models of appropriate assessment. Written by political scientists from a range of institution types and subfields, Teaching Civic Engagement makes the case that civic and political engagement should be a central part of our mission as a discipline.

Political Science Jobs eJournal from APSA

In July 2012, APSA launched a new monthly and online journal focused on jobs in political science. Political Science Jobs contains active job listings from APSA's eJobs database. The combination of the new online journal and the daily APSA eJobs database provides a continued platform for a transparent, efficient, and ethically grounded political science labor market. APSA has maintained an open academic job market for many years, and this new journal forms the next phase of these efforts.

Format and Frequency

Political Science Jobs includes all active positions in a monthly downloadable PDF and link to the searchable eJobs system online.

APSA Members

APSA members (individuals and departments) have free access to the online journal as a benefit of membership. All members also receive free access to the daily PDF of eJobs listings.

Political Science Jobs Fulfills Hiring Requirements

Political Science Jobs replaces the former PS Supplement of job listings. The April 2012 PS Supplement was the last published volume since establishing the journal in 2008 to fulfill federal regulatory requirements tied to international hiring requirements. These federal rules recently changed to recognize online or web-based professional journals as an eligible outlet.
