

PHILOSOPHY

The Journal of the Royal Institute of Philosophy

Edited by H. B. Acton

I	FEELINGS AND THEIR EXPRESSION	97
	By Karl Britton
II	BETWEEN ANALYTIC AND EMPIRICAL	112
	By J. W. N. Watkins
III	THE LORDS' DEBATE ON HANGING, JULY 1956: INTERPRETATION AND COMMENT	132
	By W. B. Gallie
IV	MORAL FACTS	148
	By Peter Remnant
V	J. S. MILL'S "PROOF" OF THE PRINCIPLE OF UTILITY	158
	By R. F. Atkinson
VI	DISCUSSION: THINKING AND MACHINES	168
	By F. H. George
VII	NEW BOOKS	170
VIII	INSTITUTE NOTES AND NOTICES	192

Published Quarterly

MACMILLAN & CO LTD LONDON

Price 6s Annual Subscription 25s 3d post free

STUDIES IN REBELLIONE. Lampert

This is a study of the origins of revolutionary thought in Russia as represented by three of its typical figures, Belinsky, Bakunin and Herzen.

*30s. netTHE PERSON IN PSYCHOLOGY*P. Lafitte*REALITY OR ABSTRACTION

Dr. Lafitte presents psychology as a whole, as a science in its own right quite independent of the natural sciences. Believing that many of the special methods of psychological investigation have been misapplied, he discusses the relations of those special methods to each other and to the knowledge of common experience.

*25s. netAN INTRODUCTION TO THE PHILOSOPHY
OF EDUCATION*D. J. O'Connor

Although the scope and methods of philosophy have been completely transformed in the last forty years, no attempt has been made before to relate this important intellectual revolution to the philosophy of education.

*10s. 6d. netINTIMATIONS OF CHRISTIANITY*Simone Weil*AMONG THE ANCIENT GREEKS

Here, upon the ground of her beloved Greek studies, some of Simone Weil's central concepts stand most firmly and fully ordered. These are not private explorations from her Note Books but, with two exceptions, whole compositions which she prepared for reviews, or for informal talks in the crypt of the Dominican Monastery at Marseilles.

*About 21s. netMETHODS AND CRITERIA OF REASONING*AN ENQUIRY INTO THE STRUCTURE OF CONTROVERSY*R. Crawshay-Williams

A principal aim of this book is to explain why many theoretical questions in the sciences remain controversial even when there is no dispute about the relevant facts, and why the problems, paradoxes and puzzles of philosophy in general remain unsolved.

*32s. netMENTAL ACTS*P. T. Geach*THE PSYCHOLOGY OF PERCEPTION*D. W. Hamlyn

These are the first two books in the new series Studies in Philosophical Psychology. The first discusses the concepts used in reports on people's thoughts and feelings, and the second shows that a philosophical inquiry into the concept of perception has bearings upon the procedure of psychologists in investigating perception.

Each 12s. 6d. net

Routledge and Kegan Paul