

CONTRIBUTORS

---

Luc Bovens is Professor at the London School of Economics and Political Science in the Department of Philosophy, Logic and Scientific Method. His research interests are in philosophy of public policy, moral psychology, Bayesian epistemology, and rational and social choice theory.

Marc Fleurbaey is Laurance S. Rockefeller Professor of Public Affairs and the Center for Human Values at Princeton University. His recent books include Fairness, Responsibility, and Welfare (Oxford University Press, 2008) and A Theory of Fairness and Social Welfare (Cambridge University Press, 2011, co-authored with F. Maniquet). His research bears primarily on normative economics and public economics.

Russell Keat is Emeritus Professor of Political Theory in the School of Social and Political Science, University of Edinburgh. His research is concerned with the ethical character and implications of market institutions. Publications include Cultural Goods and the Limits of the Market (Palgrave Macmillan, 2000). Recent papers are available at www.russellkeat.net

Prasanta K. Pattanaik is Professor of the Graduate Division at University of California, Riverside. He has published books and papers on welfare economics and social choice, the theory of choice and preference, trade theory, and the measurement of living standards and deprivation. He is a Fellow of the Econometric Society, the Public Choice society, and the Human Development and Capability Association. He can be reached via prasanta.pattanaik@ucr.edu

Wlodek Rabinowicz is Professor of Practical Philosophy at Lund University and a Fellow of the Swedish Collegium of Advanced Study (SCAS) in Uppsala. He is an editor of Theoria and a former editor of

Economics and Philosophy. He has been President of the European Society for Analytic Philosophy and Chairman of the Swedish Philosophical Society. Visiting positions include Leibniz Professorship at Universität Leipzig; Adjunct Professorship at the Research School of Social Sciences (RSSH) in Canberra; and Visiting Fellowship at All Souls. His current areas of research are theory of value and decision theory.

John E. Roemer is Elizabeth S. and A. Varick Stout Professor of Political Science and Economics at Yale University. His main interests are distributive justice, theory of socialism, equity and climate change, and political economy. His books include Political Competition (Harvard University Press, 2001) and Racism, Xenophobia and Distribution (Harvard University Press, 2007). He is a fellow of the Econometric Society and a corresponding fellow of the British Academy.

Robert Sugden is Professor of Economics at the University of East Anglia, Norwich. His research uses a combination of theoretical, experimental and philosophical methods to investigate issues in welfare economics, social choice, choice under uncertainty, the foundations of decision and game theory, the methodology of economics and the evolution of social conventions.

Miriam Teschl is Hertha Firnberg Research Fellow at the Department of Economics at the University of Vienna funded by the Austrian Science Fund (FWF). She works on the “identity” of the economic agent, as well as the rationality of choice with a focus on conflictual choices, distributive justice and the emergence of negative social preferences.

Yongsheng Xu is Professor of Economics at the Department of Economics, Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, Georgia State University. He has worked on various issues relating to theories of individual and social choice, and welfare economics. His current research focuses on the measurement of deprivation and inequality, axiomatic bargaining theory, and formation of social networks.