ATTENTION AUTHORS

The Journal of Interamerican Studies and World Affairs publishes articles that deal primarily with contemporary US-Latin American relations, US foreign policy regarding Latin America, Latin American nations' relations with each other and the rest of the world, and Latin American internal affairs when such have clear implications for US foreign policy. The editors also welcome from scholars and public figures worldwide articles about political, economic, cultural, and social aspects of Latin American Interrelationships.

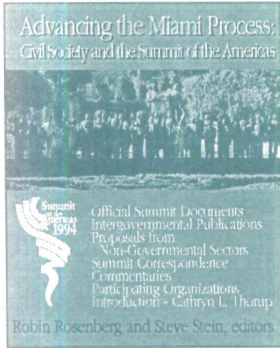

This is a refereed journal. All submissions are sent to qualified reviewers to determine acceptance for publication.

Send manuscripts in duplicate to address below, typewritten and double spaced. Place footnotes, references, tables, and charts on separate pages following current Journal style.

Upon acceptance, you will be asked to provide all tables and charts accompanying the manuscript on computer disks (either IBM-compatible or Macintosh) in addition to two complete, double-spaced printouts of disk material. Tables, charts, maps or other graphic materials will not be used unless provided on computer disks and in a file that is separate from that of the text. Columns in tables and charts should use tabs instead of individual spacing. A brief biographical sketch of the author should accompany the final manuscript.

Correspondence regarding book reviews should be directed to the Book Review Editor at the Journal of Interamerican Studies and World Affairs, University of Miami, P.O. Box 284205, Coral Gables, FL, 33124-3027.

ADVANCING THE MIAMI PROCESS: CIVIL SOCIETY AND THE SUMMIT OF THE AMERICAS

edited by Robin Rosenberg and Steve Stein

This collection of 44 official documents, inter-governmental publications, and non-governmental proposals and nine postscripts will serve as an historical record of the 1994 Summit of the Americas. With a preface by President Bill Clinton and an introduction by Cathryn L. Thorup, the volume is intended to promote government-NGO discussions and to provide a mechanism for information sharing for the ongoing Miami Process.

Robin Rosenberg is deputy director of the North-South Center, University of Miami. Steve Stein is professor of history at the University of Miami and a senior research associate at the North-South Center.

GOVERNMENT RESPONSES TO THE LATIN AMERICAN DEBT PROBLEM

edited by Robert Grosse

The Latin American debt crisis has been examined from numerous perspectives. This volume specifically focuses on the most recent phase of the external debt problem: during the past decade, many of the indebted governments have worked to overcome a debt crisis and have embarked on paths of renewed economic growth. The contributors study five Latin American countries — Chile, Brazil, Peru, Bolivia, and Mexico — and analyze their success in dealing with the debt crisis. Also included is an analysis of the Brady Plans, which have been negotiated by five countries, and a comparison of ten countries' return to international creditworthiness, focusing on the factors that have contributed most to improvement.

Robert Grosse is professor of international business and chairman of the World Business Department at the American Graduate School of International Management, Glendale, Arizona.

ECONOMIC REFORM

Latin American Political Economy in the Age of Neoliberal Reform: Theoretical and Comparative Perspectives for the 1990s

In Latin America during the 1980s, the widely accepted model of economic development based upon import-substitution collapsed, triggering profound changes in relations among the state, civil society, and the market. In its place, neoliberal strategies pursued market-oriented restructuring to achieve external adjustment, tame hyperinflation, and discipline public sector finance. However, more people are now poorer with only marginal opportunities for equality, and a few people still hold most of the wealth and control productive resources. Frequently, governments have implemented new stabilization and structural adjustment policies autocratically, undermining democratic politics and the broadening of citizens' rights. This volume advocates a fundamental rethinking of central issues.

Democracy, Markets, and Structural Reform in Latin America: Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, and Mexico

Severe political and economic problems challenge the civilian governments that have emerged in Latin America over the past decade. While achieving a degree of stability, these governments remain threatened by serious obstacles to the democratic process. This volume addresses the problematic relationship between neoliberal strategies of economic restructuring and the process of democratic consolidation.

Highlighted are the connections between democratic politics and marketplace logic — a linkage reinforced by the “Washington Consensus” of free-market reforms promoted by policymakers in the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, and the U.S. government.
