

Japan, China and the Modern World Economy

Towards a reinterpretation of East Asian development
c 1600 to c 1918

FRANCES V. MOULDER

Why, of the two great Asian societies, was it Japan rather than China that developed into an industrialized capitalist society in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries? Professor Moulder suggests that part of the answer is that there was less economic penetration and political control of Japan by imperialist nations. £9.00 net

Mao Tse-Tung in the Scales of History

Edited by DICK WILSON

'For many of the people writing this book the practice of commenting on Mao began long ago, and in that sense there is nothing at all "preliminary" about this assessment. It is carefully reasoned, well written and offers much to reflect upon on almost every page.'

CAMBRIDGE SOUTH ASIAN STUDIES

The Peasant and the Raj

Studies in agrarian society and peasant rebellion in colonial India

ERIC STOKES

These twelve essays, a combination of wide-ranging general surveys and detailed case studies, explore the nature of South Asian agrarian society and examine the extent to which it changed during the period of British rule. £12.50 net

CAMBRIDGE SOUTH ASIAN STUDIES

Classical Political Economy and British Policy in India

S. AMBIRAJAN

An examination of the effect of classical political economy - the writings of Adam Smith, Ricardo, Malthus, the Mills and others - on the policy-making of the British government in India during the late eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. By closely examining what the economists said and what the officials actually did, Professor Ambirajan shows that the relationship between policy ideals and policy decisions was often subtle and sometimes distant. £12.50 net

The Financing of Economic Development

W. T. Newlyn

The aim of this book is to consolidate and add to existing knowledge of the financial aspects of economic development. The first part is analytical, dealing with three major areas of policy (intermediation and credit creation, government savings, and foreign finance) and with the relationships between them. This is followed by case studies at various levels of generality drawn from three south Asian and four African countries. £10

Gokhale

The Indian Moderates and the British Raj

B. R. Nanda

In the shadow of Gandhi and the momentous period of his leadership, the Moderates have suffered scholarly neglect and misrepresentation. Using the political career of Gokhale (1887–1914) as the focus and drawing on new archival material in India and the U.K., the author reassesses the contribution of the Moderates to the Indian struggle for Independence. £5.25

Structure and Cognition

Aspects of Hindu Caste and Ritual

Veena Das

Sociological analysis of Hindu caste and ritual has until now been based on the empirical study of local communities. In this study the author adds a new dimension to such analysis by examining selected myths in Puranic and Sutra literature and revealing the origins of the ideology which has given local communities their particular shape and character. £5.25 Forthcoming

Perspectives in Social Sciences

Edited by Barun De

These papers cover a wide range of topics including an analysis of system change in international relations from Balance of Power to Imperialism; a study of Tipu Sultan's Mysore as a pre-British economic formation in India; an assessment of ideological and intellectual trends in nineteenth-century Bengal; a study of temple-building in Bengal; and an essay on the dwarfed growth experience of a Bengal rural town. Economic and Demographic Change in Preindustrial Japan, 1600-1868

SUSAN B. HANLEY and KOZO YAMAMURA

According to the Marxist interpretation still dominant in Japanese studies, the last part of the Tokugawa period was a time of economic and demographic stagnation. Hanley and Yamamura argue that a more satisfactory explanation can be provided within the framework of modern economic theory, and they advance and test three important new hypotheses in this book. Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan.

Contributions should be based on original research or field-work. They should be between 2000 and 8000 words long. Two typed copies should be submitted. Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his article and a copy of the Journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Selwyn College, Cambridge CB3 9DQ, England.
