

Conference on Current Approaches to Syntax

Where

University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee

When

March 15–17, 1979

Purpose

To examine systematically

- a/how approaches to syntax can differ in principle;
- b/how some of the current approaches in fact differ; and
- c/what evidence, if any, might bear on the evaluation of distinct approaches.

Primary speakers

Representatives of 14 current syntactic approaches have been invited. These are: Michael Brame, Robin Cooper, Simon Dik, William Foley, Linda Jones, Michael Kac, Susumo Kuno, George Lakoff, David Lightfoot, James McCawley, David Perlmutter, Gerald Sanders, Paul Schachter, William Sullivan, Robert Van Valin.

Discussion, initiated by invited discussants, will follow each paper. Following the papers there will be a final paper given by Robert Stockwell comparing and evaluating the approaches presented.

The conference is sponsored by the National Science Foundation.
