

Tables and figures

Tables

- Table 3.1 Selected immigrant composers of symphonies [page 31]
Table 3.2 Examples of four-movement plans before 1760 [36]
Table 9.1 Schumann, Symphony No. 2, IV, form and distribution of themes [200]
Table 9.2 Schumann, Symphony No. 4, movement scheme, forms and thematic relationships [206]
Table 10.1 Cyclical tonal schemes of 163 symphonies composed between 1800 and 1911 [252]
Table 11.1 Schoenberg, Chamber Symphony Op. 9 [271]
Table 11.2 Liszt, Les Préludes [276]
Table 11.3 Strauss, Sinfonia domestica [278]
Table 11.4 Sibelius, Symphony No. 7 [281]
Table 11.5 Samuel Barber, Symphony No. 1 [282]
Table 14.1 Nineteenth-century symphonies with choral finales [341]
Table 14.2 Nineteenth-century symphonies with implicitly choral finales [341]
Table 15.1 Rebecca Grotjahn's catalogue of mid-nineteenth-century generic titles [350]

Figures

- Figure 9.1 Bruckner, Symphony No. 5, pairing of inner and outer movements by theme and key [216]
Figure 12.1 Sibelius, Symphony No. 4, I, formal reading (after Antokoletz, 'The Musical Language of the Fourth Symphony') [288]
Figure 12.2 Carter, Symphony of Three Orchestras, form [304]