FROM THE EDITORIAL OFFICE

The Editorial Board thanks Tracy Isaacs for her time spent on the editorial board and welcomes to the board Ori Simchen and Ingo Brigandt. The Board also wishes to thank Michael Stingl for his outstanding service as Editorial Board Coordinator and welcomes David Hunter as its new coordinator.

The Editorial Board also wishes to thank the University of Calgary Press for its extraordinary partnership since the journal's inception. A special thanks is due to Judy Powell and John King at the University of Calgary Press and to our printer Herb Ratsch at Art Design Printing Inc.. Their leadership has helped make the Canadian Journal of Philosophy one of the premiere general interest academic philosophy journals in the world. Starting in 2013, the Canadian Journal of Philosophy will be published in partnership with Routledge, part of the Taylor & Francis Group.

Most papers received by CJP are sent anonymously to two expert external referees. When papers are sent to referees, the Journal aims at a six-month response time for the author. For papers not sent for external review, the Journal aims at a three-month response time for authors.

All papers are given an initial anonymous review in the editorial office. Promising papers are sent to an editor in their area, who may then send them (anonymously) to two referees. Papers with two strong referees' reports and the endorsement of the editor are sent to the editorial board as a whole, still anonymously, for discussion and a vote on acceptance.

Because of the number of papers it receives, CJP is normally able to consider papers of no longer than 10,000 words. Longer papers may be returned to authors with a suggestion to shorten them or to submit them elsewhere.

Online submissions will soon be possible at our Routledge website: www.tandfonline.com/loi/rcjp20. In the meantime, submissions should be sent to the Executive Secretary at cjp@uleth.ca.
