

first in the new series of WORLD BANK COUNTRY ECONOMIC REPORTS

For more than a decade the World Bank's economic experts have compiled in-depth studies of the economies of potential borrowing nations. They constituted a sequel to earlier general survey reports published on certain countries. Intended for the use of the Bank and the country seeking the loan, the present reports have not been made available to outside parties. Selected reports will now be published with the agreement of the government concerned. These country economic reports will prove invaluable to development economists, the banking and finance community, government agencies, consultants, and firms with economic ties to the countries discussed.

ECONOMIC GROWTH OF COLOMBIA PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS

In 1970 a large World Bank mission led by Dragoslav Avramovic compiled this comprehensive analysis of the Colombian economy. The authors assess the country's present needs and, through a novel preinvestment study program, make recommendations for the future needs of particular sectors. Industry, agriculture, transport, tourism, education, and public health are considered in detail.

MATANZA: El Salvador's Communist Revolt of 1932

By Thomas P. Anderson

Based on primary sources, this account of the first armed revolt in the Americas in which communists played a major role places the uprising in the context of its socioeconomic roots, traces its course through the bloody matanza—the slaughter of the peasants—and considers its impact on history.

NAPOLEON III AND MEXICO

American Triumph over Monarchy

ALFRED JACKSON HANNA and
KATHRYN ABBEY HANNA

In an attempt to enhance his power and prestige Napoleon III set out in 1861 on one of the most ambitious undertakings of the nineteenth century, the "Grand Design for the Americas." Through this bold plan he hoped to impose "enlightened" monarchies, in the French fashion, on the weak Spanish American Republics. In this first full account of the French intervention in Mexico and the American reactions to it, the authors, using much new material, vividly delineate the significant roles played by statesmen of the Old and New Worlds.

The SpaniardsAn Introduction to Their HistoryAmérico CastroTranslated by Willard F. King and Selma Margaretten

In Castro's study of Spanish culture and society, he dismisses the Spaniard's conception of himself as being virtually an emanation from the soil of the Iberian peninsula. His thesis is that a region forms a singular historical entity because of vital context, demands and conditions made on men in that place. When men come to think, feel, and act alike, they constitute a new nation.

9. AN ECONOMIC HISTORY OF COLOMBIA 1845–1930

WILLIAM PAUL MCGREEVEY

The author examines the relations between the external sector and the domestic economy by analyzing the history of Colombian economic development. Following a discussion of economic backgrounds, Professor McGreevey assesses the movement of per capita product and traces the reform and economic decline of the period to 1890. A lengthy evaluation of Colombia's transition to a market-oriented agricultural economy concludes the work. New statistical data is utilized in determining the impact of foreign trade. $10.95

Bartolomé De Las Casas In History

Toward an Understanding of the Man and His Work

Edited by Juan Friede and Benjamin Keen

“Four centuries after his death, the star of Las Casas’s reputation stands higher than ever in the firmament of world opinion,” write the editors of this book honoring the memory of Las Casas. A controversial figure in his own day (1474-1566), Las Casas might well be called the New World’s first political activist. Championing the cause of the Indians in “Overseas Spain,” he became their “Protector” and devoted the rest of his life to the destruction of Indian slavery—a highly volatile movement. The purpose of this collection of essays by eleven scholars from seven countries is to broaden the understanding of Las Casas’s life and work by making available in English translation the findings of leading modern European and Latin American specialists.

Change and Uncertainty in a Peasant Economy

The Maya Corn Farmers of Zinacantan

Frank Cancian. This study of economic change in a southern Mexico community stresses the influence of uncertainty on the decisions made by farmers in response to new economic opportunities provided by government improvement programs. The author first gives a detailed ethnographic description of various aspects of corn farming as of 1966. He then focuses on the changes that took place between 1957 and 1966 as the result of road-building and corn-buying programs. A final chapter develops and tests a theory relating behavior under conditions of uncertainty to rank in an economic stratification system. Illustrated. $7.95

Landlord and Peasant in Colonial Oaxaca

William B. Taylor. The hacienda system of northern Mexico generally has been considered an accurate model of Spanish settlement and landholding for all of colonial Mexico. This study demonstrates, however, that conditions in the Valley of Oaxaca were markedly different, and that many previously accepted generalizations about land tenure in the colonial era will have to be modified or discarded. Chapters examine the major landholders in Oaxaca—Indian nobility, Indian communal groups and individual peasants, Spaniards, and the Church. Illustrated. April. About $10.00

CLASP

THE CONSORTIUM was organized early in 1969 as an association of over 200 Latin American studies programs at American colleges and universities. Its purpose is to promote the study of Latin America by providing its members with guidance on programs and policy and by gathering and publishing information useful to them. Administered by a National Steering Committee elected by the members, CLASP maintains liaison with LASA through the Executive Secretariat which serves both organizations. Annual dues for 1971 are $50.00. Further information can be obtained from the LASA/CLASP Secretariat, Hispanic Foundation, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

THE CONSORTIUM OF LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES PROGRAM

LASA

The LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES ASSOCIATION

- is the national organization of scholars and specialists
- is a learned society that fosters the interests of persons concerned with the study of Latin America
- treats matters of common interest to the scholarly disciplines and to individuals concerned with Latin American studies

Membership

- is open to persons and institutions having educational and scholarly concerns in matters related to Latin America
- includes subscriptions to the LATIN AMERICAN RESEARCH REVIEW and the LASA Newsletter as well as Membership Register and other occasional publications
- entitles you to advance information about the next National Meeting

Information

- about LASA is available from the LASA Secretariat, Hispanic Foundation, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540 . Write and ask for an application form and 1971 Fact Sheet.

Each February, June, and October some copies of LARR are returned to the office because subscribers did not provide for the forwarding of third class mail. The cost to the Latin American Research Review of each such return and the additional expense for forwarding now runs close to $1.00. Therefore, beginning with Volume VII:1 (February 1972), any copy of LARR returned to us because of an undeclared change of address will not be sent out again from our office unless the addressee sends $1.00 to cover the cost of handling. In order to avoid the charge, please notify us immediately of your change of address when you move.
